Weekend warriors

Softball team falls to Oklahoma, splits series with OSU

BY JASON LINCOLN The Battalion

It was a rough weekend for the Texas A&M Softball Team, who hosted a pair of double-headers against two Oklahoma foes. Saturday the Aggies fell to conference leader University of Oklahoma, 3-0, 6-4. Sunday also started off ominously, as A&M dropped the first game against Oklahoma State University, 2-4, but the Aggies were able to step up in the second to split the series with a 2-1 win. "We needed that win [against OSU]," A&M coach Jo Evans said. "We put ourselves in the hole early. I was surprised that we came out flat and dropped that first game. Our team has played with a lot of intensity and we expected to win [against OSU]."

In the first game of the weekend, the Aggies were able to keep pace with the bats of the Sooners as the two teams turned in six hits each, but the OU field kept A&M scoreless through seven innings. The Aggies were on the way to returning the favor when Sooner center fielder Ashli Barrett drove the pitch from sophomore Amy Vining out of the park for a threerun home run, the only runs of the game. Pitcher Jenifer Stewart recorded four strikeouts in a complete-game effort for OU, improving her record to 17-2.

In the second game, OU found its rhythm against Vining and turned in five runs off 10 hits. Sophomore Jordana Barrack came in the game in the bottom of the third to try to get the save for the Aggies. Barrack gave up just two hits for one run, but it was not enough as the Sooners came away with a 6-4 win.

Vining started her third game in two days Sunday to start the series against OSU. The Cowgirls went up early, carrying a 1-0 lead into the bottom of the seventh, but sophomore Tiffany Esters stepped up for the Aggies with a gametying home run.

Freshman catcher Lisa Klam misses the tag during the first game of the Aggies' doubleheader against Oklahoma State University Sunday. The Texas A&M Softball Team split the pair with the Cowgirls.

"After getting out of the slump, I got more confidence with every at bat," Esters said.

The game went into extra innings, where both teams offense struggled. The top of the 10th brought about the tiebreaker rule, by which the teams started the inning with a runner on second. That was all the Cowgirls needed to jump out to a 4-1 lead. A&M was able to score just one run to answer and dropped the game, 4-2.

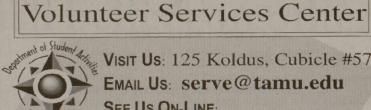

Vining went nine innings against the Cowgirls before being relieved by junior Danielle Lemuth. Vining's record drops to 19-11.

The Aggie bats had their share of trouble in the second game against OSU, as they were held to six hits compared to the Cowgirls' eighth. The game was tied going into the bottom of the seventh, threatening yet another extrainnings game, but this time it was Aggie junior Stephanie Trumbull who stepped up, hitting a long shot to center in a bases-loaded situation to bring in the winning run. "I just wanted to help the team win," Trumbull said about the game-winning RBI. "[The game] was tough, but this will be a boost going into the road games.

The Aggies will host their last home game of the season Wednesday against Sam Houston State University before hitting the road to finish the Big 12 season with four doubleheaders in two
