U.S. Women's Soccer Team captures second

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Playing through heat, exhaustion and tension, the two best women's soccer teams on the planet could not shake one another.

Something had to give. And after 120 minutes without a score, including a sudden-death overtime, something did.

Briana Scurry's fingertips, Kristine Lilly's head and Brandi Chastain's foot made all the difference against China in the World Cup final Saturday.

"Each of us have hearts too big for our chests," Chastain, who scored the winning penalty kick in the shootout then dropped to her knees and ripped her white jersey, said.

She swung the shirt over her head as her jubilant U.S. teammates mobbed her and the record crowd of 90,185 at the Rose Bowl cheered wildly.

"Momentary insanity," Chastain said. "I just lost my mind. I thought, 'My God, this is the greatest moment of my life on the soccer field.'"

It was also the greatest moment for a team that captured America with its style and grace and now has conquered the world.

Chastain's goal, which followed a save by Scurry in the shootout, gave the U.S. team the prestigious trophy in soccer before the largest crowd ever to see a women's game.

"I knew I had to stop just one and my teammates would put all of them in," Scurry, who stopped Liu Ying on the third attempt in the shootout, said. "I went totally on instinct."

The festive gathering in 90-degree heat included President Clinton. The crowd roared when Scurry made the diving save to her left. Moments later, their cheers reverberating off the San Gabriel Mountains, as Chastain won it.

None of it would have been possible if not for Lilly. She saved her team in the 100th minute during the sudden-death overtime, heading a shot off the goal line.

"It's not a goal if it's not there," she said. "After I did it, I wanted to get downfield and score and end the game quickly." No way. It would go on for 20 more minutes, and then into the shootout.

Chastain, who was cut from the national team in 1994 and had to work her way back onto it, posed for Gear Magazine in June with nothing but a strategically placed soccer ball hiding her naked body. This time, she revealed a black sports bra as she and her teammates leapt on one another in celebration.

"You saw the courage of the American team," U.S. coach Tony DiCicco said. "They just fought and fought and fought. These are two champions here today, and only one is taking a trophy home."
