Bexar prepares new arena plan

Proposal could go public next week

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A proposal to build an arena for the San Antonio Spurs on county-owned property could be ready for public scrutiny next week, Bexar County officials say.

Elected officials for the city and county, meanwhile, are holding meetings to iron out differences between their two competing arena plans.

San Antonio leaders want to build a $203 million arena and three-story parking garage next to the city-owned Alamodome downtown using revenues from a half-cent sales tax increase.

Mayor Howard Peak has set an Aug. 12 deadline to nail down an agreement with the Spurs for assistance in financing the project.

On that date, the City Council is to consider the final wording for a tax increase to appear on the Nov. 2 ballot.

Bexar County also is rushing to put together a plan for an arena to be built next to county-owned Freeman Coliseum, a few miles east of downtown.

Proceeds from event parking, ticket sales and increased hotel-motel and rental-car taxes would help pay for the project, which would also be financed with long-term debt.

County staff members emerged midway through a private meeting Tuesday with consultants to announce they expect to have a proposal ready for consideration by county commissioners by Monday at the earliest or Aug. 12 at the latest.

Staff blames Penders for releasing grade

Testimony: Former UT coach ordered

AUSTIN (AP) — More than a year after his departure, former University of Texas basketball coach Tom Penders still finds himself denying he ordered the improper release of a player's grades to a radio station.

But in sworn depositions, former and current UT employees say Penders orchestrated the release of former guard Luke Axtell's grades and let someone else take the blame.

"This is all ridiculous," Penders, who now coaches at George Washington University, said. "I've told nothing but the truth. I'd take a polygraph on it."

The almost 1,000 pages of testimony from nine people were filed Tuesday in Travis County state district court as part of Axtell's lawsuit against Capstar Texas Limited Partnership, the parent company of KVET-AM.

Filed in January, the lawsuit asserts the station violated Axtell's right to privacy when it broadcast his academic status report on March 18, 1998. Axtell, who later transferred to the University of Kansas, is suing for damages of more than $500,000.

The release of the grades after Penders suspended Axtell for alleged academic misconduct, although the school said that Axtell was in good standing and the grade report incorrect
