Highway officials brace for holiday

DPS predicts 39 motorist fatalities over Labor Day Weekend

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Public Safety is estimating that 39 motorists will lose their lives on the state's highways this Labor Day weekend.

That forecast was issued yesterday, the day several new traffic laws took effect.

One of those lowered the legal blood-alcohol limit from .10 to 0.08, which officials said would provide a new weapon to combat drunken driving.

"This new law sends a message to Texans that tolerance of drinking and driving is at an all-time low" Col. Dudley M. Thomas, DPS director, said. "We will drive that point home in our enforcement efforts."

The 39 fatalities being forecast are down from the 45 deaths recorded in 41 accidents during the 78-hour Labor Day holiday period last year.

The DPS said that in wrecks where seat belt usage was applicable, 46 percent of those killed were not wearing safety belts. Eleven of last year's 45 fatalities were alcohol-related.

According to DPS records, there were 40 fatalities over the 1997 Labor Day holiday, 43 in 1996 and 34 in 1995. Alcohol was involved in 20 of the 1997 deaths, 19 in 1996 and 14 in 1995.

Under another new law, drivers could face tickets if children under age 15 are not buckled up, the DPS said.

In addition, motorists will find trucks legally traveling at the same speed as cars. The new law means large trucks, including 18-wheelers, and assorted vehicles pulling trailers and school activity buses will be able to drive the same speed limit as cars on interstates and highways — up to 70 mph.

"The faster speed limit for trucks will be a challenge to us all — law enforcement, motorists and truck drivers," Thomas said.

While the laws of Texas have changed, laws of physics have not changed, the director added.

"Bigger trucks, traveling at faster speeds, take longer to stop," Thomas said. "We hope truck drivers will handle this with increased responsibility."

The DPS also announced that it will have patrols to deal with the expected jump in motorists this weekend, beginning at 6 p.m. and running through midnight Monday.

State troopers will be focusing on drunk drivers, reckless drivers and law violators, the agency said.

State to take over Austin prison

AUSTIN (AP) — Citing chronic operations problems and an ongoing sex scandal, state prison officials will take over an Austin jail from a private corrections company.

The Travis County Community Justice Center, operated by Wackenhut Corrections Corp., has been the focus of a criminal investigation into allegations guards had sex with some of the 106 female inmates and whether evidence of illicit activity was covered up.

Investigators also say they have subpoenaed state jail records for the past two years, looking for evidence of assaults, retaliation, contraband, attempts to silence witnesses and the response of jail managers to any problems. Travis County authorities announced the probe two weeks ago.

The decision to take over the jail followed meetings this week between Travis County Judge Sam Biscoe and other county officials, Wackenhut chief executive George Zoley and state prison officials, the Austin American-Statesman reported yesterday.

"Wackenhut Corrections agrees that it is in everyone's best interests to cooperate in this effort," Zoley said in a written statement that made no mention of the criminal investigation.

Promising "an orderly transition" to state operation, Allan Polunsky, chair of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice governing board, said prison system employees would be sent to monitor jail operations until the state takes over.

No official timetable was announced. Prison officials said it could take up to 60 days. Wackenhut said the contract would end Jan. 3, 2000.

Vice president visits San Antonio school

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Vice President Al Gore traveled to Texas yesterday to raise an estimated $200,000 for his presidential campaign and to stump for a federal plan to rebuild old schools.

"The whole country is going back to school," Gore told pupils, parents and teachers.

"In preparing for lives of the future, many are going into schools of the past."

As he toured Crockett Elementary School, a 76-year-old campus in the heart of a poor Hispanic section of the city, Gore saw cracks in a brick building and was ushered through portable classrooms meant to ease school crowding.

School officials also told him of plumbing and air conditioning problems and a shortage of library books.

Such problems are common throughout the United States, Gore said.

Meeting with selected students and teachers, Gore touted the Clinton administration's proposal to provide $24.8 billion in interest-free bonds over two years for local public school modernization.

He chided Republicans in Congress for opposing the Clinton legislation, saying they would rather take surplus money and "blow it on a risky tax scheme."

Gore did not mention Texas Gov. George W. Bush, his potential Republican presidential opponent in 2000 should both men win the nomination of their respective political parties.

Later in the day, Gore was to attend a $1,000-per-person fundraiser at the home of Democratic supporters.

Campaign officials have said they hoped to net $200,000 during the one-day swing through San Antonio.

The vice president arrived at the San Antonio International Airport to the sounds of mariachi music.

Two congressmen from San Antonio and track star Carl Lewis of Houston joined him.

Earlier this year, Gore visited Texas to raise money in Dallas and Houston.

He also came to Texas in May with President Clinton.

Rivalry sparks gun battle

TEXARKANA (AP) — A rivalry between Texas High School and Arkansas High schools in different states traditionally spread beyond the football field.

But officials are down as vandalism with the competition in recent years from closed, Fralless "eggings" to potential dangerous paint-gun attacks.

District officials have paintball guns at Arkansas "If we find one on we'll consider it a Arkansas High principal Floyd told the Texarkana school board, and we recommendation of one with a paintball result in a third-degree charge.

The penalties are not at Texas High, but students suspended for using a ball gun on the campus. Security at both has been increased this and officers will patrol back Stadium tomorrow the game.
