Violence erupts in East Timor

Pro-Indonesian militia forces target independence supporters

DILI, Indonesia (AP) — Tens of thousands of people crammed aboard ferries and planes to flee East Timor yesterday as pro-Indonesian militias besieged a U.N. compound and set fire to homes belonging to people who support independence for the province.

Casualty reports were impossible to verify, though witnesses said scores were killed yesterday in the former Portuguese colony. Staff at two hospitals said they had treated about a dozen patients for machete wounds.

Indonesian security forces, responsible for keeping the peace in East Timor since an overwhelming majority voted for independence, appeared to do little to stop the rampaging militias from taking control of the provincial capital, Dili. There is strong evidence that the militias are supported by elements of the Indonesian army.

"There is every indication that a massacre is taking place, staged by [Indonesian] military forces," Ana Gomes, Lisbon's diplomatic envoy to Jakarta, told Portugal's TSF radio. "Over 100 dead would be a conservative estimate."

Indonesian officials have denied backing the anti-independence militias. Armed forces chief Gen. Wiranto, who like many Indonesians uses one name, has sent two more battalions — about 1,400 troops — to keep order in the province.

Portugal, East Timor's former colonial power, strongly chastised Indonesian authorities yesterday for failing to curb the brutal ramping violence. "The spiraling violence demonstrates the grant incapacity of Indonesian authorities to control the situation and to restore order in Timor," a government statement said.

The U.N. Security Council called an emergency meeting in New York to review the situation. Armed pro-Indonesia forces surrounded a compound belonging to the U.N. Mission in East Timor, or UNAMET, shooting into the air to keep workers from venturing out. The United Nations responsible for the referendum to end 24 years of Indonesian control over East Timor.

"Certainly what we're seeing today is not chaos, it is chaos by design," a U.N. spokesman said on condition of anonymity. "There is a clearly some attempt made to try to force UNAMET and the international community

Bombings kill 3 in Israel as peace accord ratified

TIBERIAS, Israel (AP) — Two car blasts in northern Israeli cities killed three people yesterday — probably the bombers themselves — and left a fourth person in critical condition in attacks likely aimed at halting the newly revived peace process, police said.

The explosions in the cities of Tiberias and Haifa came hours after a signing ceremony for the first Israeli-Palestinian peace agreement negotiated since the new Israeli prime minister, Ehud Barak, took office. The land-for-security pact hinges on the Palestinians agreeing to fight terror attacks.

Israel's Cabinet ratified the pact, 21-2, yesterday. But headline opponents to the peace process and even Prime Minister Ehud Barak's chief peace negotiator said attacks could derail the deal.

At both bombing scenes, police quickly sealed off the areas and demolition experts moved in. Witnesses described scenes of carnage, with limbs torn from bodies and broken glass and twisted metal littering the streets. In Tiberias, the burned remains of one of the alleged bombers was draped on the hood of the car.

"I was near the main street and I heard a great explosion," an eyewitness to the Tiberias blast, identified only as Roni, told army radio. "We ran to the place of the attack and saw three bodies burned, body parts in the air. They cleared us from the area."

The three dead were all inside the cars, Haifa police Commander Dor Schechter told reporters, suggesting those killed were the attackers. He said the almost-simultaneous explosions in the two towns 60 miles apart indicated a coordinated attack.

"The circumstances, the timing indeed suggest a political motive," Schechter said. He said police were investigating all possibilities.

Militant Islamic groups, believing the peace process to be a sellout and furious that their members were left out of a prisoner-release deal, have vowed to continue attacks within Israel. However, there was no immediate claim of responsibility for the blasts.

India braces for election

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Battles of rocks, swords and bombs left six parliamentarians dead yesterday in the first phase of India's parliamentary election, a contest in which the heavily favored ruling coalition against Italian-born opposition leader Sonia Gandhi.

But despite the deaths, the country's election commissioner says the violence is less severe than during previous elections.

The election was "much cooler and more controlled," even "very boring" compared to earlier polls, independent Election Commission member Manohar Singh Gill said. "By speaking, the poll has been very peaceful," he said.

He announced a fairly low 55 percent turnout yesterday in voting for 145 seats. More than a quarter of the 543 seats to be elected to the lower house of parliament, the Lok Sabha. Indian voter interest has declined with the frequency of elections. The vote is broken up into several phases, the last of which ends Oct. 5. The new house must be seated by Oct. 21.
