PEOPLE

Affleck: Damon and I are not gay

NEW YORK (AP) — Ben Affleck says there is absolutely no truth to tabloid gossip that he and Matt Damon are more than friends.

"I like to think that if I were gay I would be out, Rupert Everett-style," Affleck said in the October issue of Vanity Fair.

Everett (An Ideal Husband, My Best Friend's Wedding) is an openly gay actor.

The movie Good Will Hunting, which boyhood buddies Affleck and Damon co-wrote and starred in, probably helped fuel the rumors, he said.

Affleck said he also has a limited capacity for compromise and for now lacks the willingness to put his energy into a romantic relationship.

"The reason I'm single is because I wouldn't want to be with anybody right now who would be willing to be with me," Affleck told the magazine.

Puff Daddy receives anger counseling

NEW YORK (AP) — Sean "Puffy" Combs was ordered yesterday to undergo a day of anger management counseling after he pleaded guilty to harassing a recording executive.

Combs, 29, and an associate were arrested in April on charges of assaulting Steven Stoute, who suffered a broken arm, a broken jaw and cuts to his head after being hit with a chair and a champagne bottle, police said.

The rap mogul initially was charged with second-degree assault and faced up to seven years in prison, but Stoute balked at pursuing the prosecution and Combs was allowed to plead guilty to the lesser charge of harassment.

Combs blamed Stoute for letting MTV air a video with a scene that showed Combs nailed to a cross.

His attorney said Combs wanted the scene cut because he worried it might be offensive.
