

Dress For Success

Sept 13, 7:00 Rudder Theatre

Can't decide what to wear to your important interview? Come hear from the experts and learn what is "suitable" to wear.

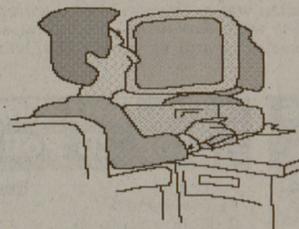

Special presenters are:

David Shellenberger, The Suit Club

Tassie Boultinghouse '90, Foley's.

2 FREE suits and other door prizes will be given away!

Career Center 209 Koldus 845-5139 <http://aggienet.tamu.edu/cctr>

Using the World Wide Web for Research

Texas A&M University General Libraries is offering a class to assist Texas A&M University students and faculty in effectively using the World Wide Web for research.

This session uses Netscape Navigator or Internet Explorer to search the World Wide Web. It surveys WWW search services, illustrates advanced search strategies, teaches how to store sites useful for your class work or research and provides criteria for evaluating and citing web information. Sessions include demonstration and hands-on practice. Bring a 3.5 formatted high density disk if you want to save information.

Prerequisite: This class meets for an hour and 15 minutes in a CIS Open Access Computing Lab. You must CLAIM A LABS ACCOUNT from the Block ATM screen or a CIS help desk (call 845-8300 for assistance) prior to the class in order to use a computer in an Open Access Computing Lab.

Day	Date	Time	Location
Wednesday	Sept 8	5:45 - 7:00 pm	Student Computing Center, 114
Thursday	Sept 9	5:30 - 6:45 pm	Student Computing Center, 114
Monday	Sept 13	5:45 - 7:00 pm	West Campus Library, Rm. 126
Tuesday	Sept 14	5:30 - 6:45 pm	Student Computing Center, 114

Bring a 3.5 formatted high density disk if you want to save information. There is no charge and no sign-up is necessary. All are welcome.

Bring It

Where it matters most.

As one of the world's leading diversified technology companies, we're breaking new ground in everything from defense and commercial electronics, to aviation, to engineering and construction. As a Raytheon employee, you'll contribute to the development of exciting, revolutionary technology designed to make life better, easier, and safer throughout the world. Such as our STARS air traffic control system. And our award-winning NightSight™ technology.

But it all starts with you. Your creativity. Your knowledge. And enthusiasm about the future. In return, we offer exceptional training and professional development opportunities. A supportive, down-to-earth work environment. And incredible benefits including flexible schedules designed to respect your quality of life.

So you can still show off all those great qualities of yours outside of work, too.

We have a lot to tell you about Raytheon and the exciting opportunities we have available. Plan on visiting our booth at your college career fair. If you are unable to attend the fair, please e-mail your resume to: resume@rayjobs.com (ASCII text only; no attachments), or mail to: Raytheon Company, Attn: National Staffing Data Center, P.O. Box 660246, MS-201, Dallas, TX 75266. U.S. citizenship may be required. We are an equal opportunity employer.

Opportunities are available for exceptional students with the following majors:

- Aeronautical Engineering
- Chemical Engineering
- Civil Engineering and Construction Management
- Computer Engineering
- Computer Science
- Electrical Engineering
- Finance/Accounting
- Human Resources
- Industrial and Labor Relations
- Management
- Marketing/Communications
- Math
- Mechanical Engineering
- Physics

Check out our Website at www.rayjobs.com/campus for further information including a calendar of recruiting events. At Raytheon, we strive to be the employer of choice for a diverse workforce by attracting, retaining, and recognizing the most talented, resourceful and creative people.

Bringing technology to the edge

Raytheon

Republicans promise to widen Waco inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP) — GOP lawmakers angered by the Justice Department's failure to produce crucial documents promised yesterday a broader investigation of the 1993 Waco siege than the one planned by a special counsel.

Top Republicans continued to press for Attorney General Janet Reno's ouster while the administration pledged its support.

Meantime, former Sen. John Danforth, the Missouri Republican appointed by Reno to lead the independent investigation, said he would try to avoid a political inquiry.

The chair of a House Government Affairs Committee, which will review the government's role in Waco, said Danforth will concentrate on possible criminal activity while "we're going to be taking a broader look."

"We need to find out who's responsible," Rep. Dan Burton, R-Ind., said on "Fox News Sunday." "We don't want people in charge of things like Waco if they're not doing their job properly."

Danforth, appearing on five Sunday news programs, said his investigation would have a narrow focus and seek to avoid politics.

"It's not going to be sort of a general sweeping investigation into whether or not good or bad was used by government officials during the siege, in which some 80 Branch Davidians were killed."

Asked about lessons learned from the investigations of the Clintons, Danforth said he would not be absolutely open-ended where one morphs into another issue.

He said he would work with Congress. "I would like to do is to wait until the investigation is complete and then have a report and not have a running commentary now and then."

Reno asked Danforth last week whether there was a cover-up and the Justice Department was involved in the killings.

The renewed criticism of the Justice Department and Reno was prompted by the news that the department turned over to Congress a report that mentioned the use of tear gas against the Branch Davidians.

A department spokesperson said the report was given to lawyers in criminal and civil cases involving Waco survivors, and the special counsel had to look into why it never reached the public.

Burton, in a letter to Reno made public, said the omission of the critical page "raises the question about whether this committee was intended during the original Waco investigation."

RENO

Cardinal returns after brain surgery

NEW YORK (AP) — Cardinal John O'Connor drew laughter at St. Patrick's Cathedral yesterday as he made his first public appearance since surgery for a brain tumor.

The appearance came just over a week after he was released from Memorial Sloan Kettering Medical Center. He has not said whether the tumor was malignant or what his prognosis might be.

"This has been a truly marvelous funeral," he joked to 2,500 worshippers. "I've enjoyed every bit of it."

O'Connor, 79, recalled hearing the news that he had a brain tumor and said: "You could hardly expect to hear words more filled with dread than that."

But he called the surgery "extraordinarily successful." He did not use the word cancer but said radiation therapy had "cleaned up any possible debris" from the growth.

"There have been so many prayers, so many cards, so many messages," O'Connor said. "It's impossible for me to keep up, but I'm told we're making a lot of money for the archdiocese selling flowers."

Standing unassisted, the cardinal delivered the homily for the Mass, which was dedicated to workers in honor of Labor Day.

He noted that his father was a union member, who worked applying gold leaf to ornate architectural designs, and quipped: "When there was serious consideration of this, I insisted that my casket have a union label."

O'Connor also joked that he had sent the Pope lists that have appeared in the media with names of his potential successors. "He hasn't yet told me who that will be, if or when," he said.

Buchanan considers Reform

WASHINGTON — Buchanan came closer yesterday to saying he would quit the Republican campaign for the Reform nomination.

"The door really is open," Buchanan said. "I'm close to making that decision."

For weeks, Reform leader Jesse Ventura, a Minnesota governor, has urged Buchanan to quit the campaign. Buchanan should nominate Buchanan as president.

Ventura has said he would like to see an education reform plan chosen by voters, not by Congress. He said he would like to see a conservative economic plan, not a liberal one, and that he would like to see a conservative approach to other issues.

the AGGIE yearbook

98 years of timeless tradition

A lifetime of memories

Reserve your place in the nation's largest yearbook

Come by Reed Meade Room 004 or call 845-5139

AGGIE 2000