HICKEY

Hickey led the 1993-1994 team to the Sweet 16 in the NCAA tournament with a 23-8 over-all record and a second-place finish in the SWC. In 1994 when Hickey was promoted to senior associate athletic director and relinquished her coaching duties. She finished her coaching career at A&M with a 154-128 record in 10 seasons.

Cheatham said she is now one of only a few female athletic directors at the Division I level and at this level, Hickey will gain the background she needs to be more influential in the lobby for women's athletics.

She said Hickey will be missed by many in the A&M Athletics Department because she was well liked and got many people involved in the department.

"Lynn was a doer not a watcher, she got many people on board and involved in women's athletics," she said. "She was and is a great mentor, a great friend, and a wonderful person, we will miss her, but we will keep in touch."

only take drivers around the perimeter of the garage. In order to make finding a spot easier, new arrows will need to be painted.

"Obviously with the structure of the garage and the way the first floor is designed, the earliest [the change could happen] would be next fall," she said.

Kathy Mathis, associate director of PTTS, said the proposal for a shuttle bus to run from West Campus parking lots to the residence halls will possibly begin soon.

Mathis said the proposed starting date for the shuttle would be when classes resume after the winter holiday.

"The earliest [the change to the garage could happen] would be next fall."

— Kathy Mathis
Associate director, PTTS

"This shuttle will run after hours until 1:30 [a.m.] or 2 [a.m.], when everyone is getting off of work," she said.

In other business, the General Assembly discussed:

• The Coca-Cola Bottling Company is responding to surveys concerning the vending machine service that residence halls provide. The surveys were completed by students who live in the residence hall during the first few weeks of school.

Steve McMahan, a Coca-Cola Bottling representative, said the company is hoping to provide more machines to residence halls, adding Aggie Bucks scanner to some existing machines presently not equipped and the replacement of older machines, with mechanical problems, with new machines.

• Dr. Susanna Finnell, the Honors Program executive director, presented the history and future of the proposed change of Clements Hall into an honors residence hall.

Finnell said the change is still being considered by Residence Life and the Honors Program.

College of Science recognizes staff, faculty for dedication

BY BRADY CREEL

The Texas A&M College of Science recognized two staff members for their commitment to their jobs and other faculty last week.

Ronald Carter, manager of business and facility operations for the Department of Chemistry, and Monique Stewart, staff assistant in the Department of Mathematics, were recipients of the 1999 College of Science Outstanding Staff Achievement Awards, which were given last week at their faculty and staff meeting.

Carter and Stewart were nominated anonymously by their co-workers and selected based upon their dedication, enthusiasm, accomplishments and contributions to their individual departments and the College of Science.

Carter has been employed by the College of Science for 26 years and his duties are very diverse. He has been known to work on weekends and evenings dealing with fires, flooding and power outages. His nominators said any department or university would be eager to have Ron and his skills on their team.

"[Carter] brings qualities of dedication, organization, and conscientiousness that can only be described as incredible."

— Dr. Emile Schweikert
Head of Chemistry Department

"He is, without a doubt, the most dedicated and talented employee we have ever had the pleasure of working with," the nominating committee said.

Dr. Emile Schweikert, head of the chemistry department, said one of the most common expressions in the chemistry is, "See Ron Carter take care of it."

"[Carter] brings qualities of dedication, organization, and conscientiousness that can only be described as incredible," Schweikert said he was received the award.

"I was very elated when I was informed that I was selected to receive this achievement award," Carter said he has been Stewart has been in the Department of Mathematics for five years. She was selected for being a self-starter, always inventing ways upon her own initiative.

"It is fair to say that the success of the graduate mathematics has achieved past five years is due to Ms. Stewart's efficiency," Stewart's nominators said.

Stewart's co-workers her organizational skills, mentoring graduate students, and her gentle attitude toward students.
