After stellar year, Woods still seeks improvement

SOTOGRADE, Spain (AP) — Tiger Woods broke into a wide grin when asked how he could possibly top this year — a major championship, eight titles on the tour, $6 million in winnings and a Ryder Cup victory for good measure.

Then he turned serious. "I can promise you, I will continue to work," he said. While the rest of the PGA Tour goes home for the winter to digest Woods' latest win of the just-concluded season, he will continue with three tournaments in the Pacific that could determine how long he can keep his amazing streak alive.

The 23-year-old won his fourth consecutive tournament Sunday in the American Express Championship, the most since Ben Hogan won four straight in 1953.

After a clinic yesterday at Valderrama Golf Club, Woods was off to Taiwan to defend his title in the Johnnie Walker Classic. After that, he heads to Malaysia to play in the World Cup with Mark O'Meara. The week after, he winds his way to Hawaii for the PGA Grand Slam of Golf.

As far as consecutive victories on the PGA Tour, he will not be able to build on that until the Mercedes Championship at the start of next year.

For a player who became golf's first $6 million man after winning eight times this year — the most since Johnny Miller won eight in 1974 — Woods was relatively subdued after his playoff victory over Miguel Angel Jimenez at Valderrama.

One reason for that is his work is not done — and not just the three tournaments in the next three weeks. He is a work in progress. The scary thing is, the work is just beginning.

Where will that lead? The possibilities are endless. Woods has won eight out of his 11 tournaments, including a victory against a world-class field in Germany in May.

Since then, his worst finish was in the Sprint International, a tie for 37th, the week after winning the PGA Championship.

"To play week after week, and then to win on top of that, it is draining," he said. "It was a great way to end the year. And hopefully, next year I'll play the same type of golf and we'll see about the number of victories, but see if I can continue to improve."

The turning point came in May, the week before the Byron Nelson Classic, when all the refinements he has made in his swing the past 18 months finally started to make sense.

Since then, his highest round has been a 74 — and that includes the U.S. Open and British Open. Twenty-three of his 40 rounds have been in the 60s.

That is a far cry from his spring, when he went 15 consecutive rounds without breaking 70.

"It was just a matter of time said. "I had to be patient and at my own game so that we came round, I could start tournaments. When it came er, I felt I could start winning."

The final round of the American Express Championship will be remembered for making triple bogey on 17 where he hit shots like Hogan got a result like Jean Van de Gucht, slithered off the green and into the water, and Woods was so fortunate to walk off the green an 8. Even more fortunate it was that Jimenez fell to twice on the 18th hole.

Still, Sunday's finish Valderrama may have owed the real reason why Woods on golf's best break in 46 years.

Along with his tremendous talent, Woods has a wide selection of shots and good sense when to use them.

That means he will be a factor just about every tournament plays, and there has been proof that the past six months.

He struck a 9-iron all of 17th. True, he was wronging into the wind and he eventually wound up in the hole, but Woods' took two extra strokes to take spin off the ball and keep it on the green.

Except for a tricked-up shot the shot would have been in the hole in the 10th tee into more cross for a perfect angle into the hole yet another birdie.

He also went high and 8-iron from 196 yards on the 12th for an 8-foot birdie.

How good was Woods Sunday? Until he caught up of bad breaks, he was headed 7-under 64. That would
