

JR. INDUSTRIAL ENGINEER

Wide-lite is seeking an entry-level industrial engineer with leadership ability and the desire to be a key part of an aggressive growth company. Aggressive growth and a recent merger offer unique opportunities. Wide-Lite is the industry leader in designing and manufacturing commercial and industrial lighting fixtures.

The qualified candidate will have the following background: a degree in industrial engineering with a high GPA; knowledge of World Class Manufacturing practices, including Kaizen, Kanban and work cell design; material handling / packaging concepts; and computer literacy, including AutoCAD, MS Word and Excel. Recent graduates are encouraged to apply. Candidate will work closely with Senior Industrial Engineer.

Please forward your resume to Human Resources at fax: (512) 753-1168, mailing address: Wide-Lite, P.O. Box 606, San Marcos, TX 78667, or e-mail: willfong@swbell.net. Visit our web-site at <http://www.wide-lite.com/>.

CAMPUS

Gregory attended A&M when it was called Texas A&M College and all students were members of the Corps of Cadets. Reveille I was the mascot at the time and the yearbook was called the Longhorn, not the Aggie land.

Following graduation, Gregory completed pilot training at Randolph Field and flight training at Kelly Field and was then assigned as a pursuit pilot in Hawaii.

Gregory flew B-17s as a combat pilot in the Pacific theatre during the early part of World War II.

In June 1942, Gregory was a pilot in the battle of Midway that bombed and sank a Japanese aircraft carrier. He flew 57 combat hours in four days during the battle.

In the latter part of World War II, he flew B-24s in Italy.

Gregory's daughter, Carolyn Sonleitner, said even though he had been a decorated and celebrated hero of war, he did not have a positive view of war.

"He thought that no matter what the outcome was, war is still horrible," she said.

Sonleitner said her father was modest about his achievements in battle and did not speak about his experiences often.

His assignments during his active career include Headquarters, Strategic Air Command; Headquarters, U.S. Air Force and as chief of the U.S. Air Force Mission in El Salvador. He also served as deputy chief of staff for personnel for the Air Force Cambridge Research Center in Boston, Mass.

His decorations include the Silver Star, the Air Medal,

Commendation Medal.

Gregory received his master's degree in business administration from the Graduate School of Business at Stanford University. At 34, he was promoted to the rank of colonel.

After 24 years of active service, Gregory retired in 1966 to spend time with his wife and daughters. After four years of retirement, Gregory began working as a stockbroker. He continued until his death three weeks ago.

He will be laid to rest at Arlington National Cemetery.

SILVER TAPS

Tania Fongemie, a senior political science major, said that nothing about tonight's Silver Taps ceremony will be different, but because of the tragedies that have affected the campus this year, students, faculty and staff should reflect on how fortunate they are to be a part of this university.

Due to the anticipated increase of attendance, Parking Traffic and Transportation Services (PTTS) will close Old Main Drive and Houston Street from 9:30 until 11:30 p.m. This will close Lamar Street to the MSC, Houston Street from Bizzell Hall to the A.P. Beutal Health Center and Jones Street past Henderson Hall to Albritton Tower.

ONE ARMY

Brensinger said the organization was discussed and debated about for more than a year before becoming formally recognized by the University.

Correction

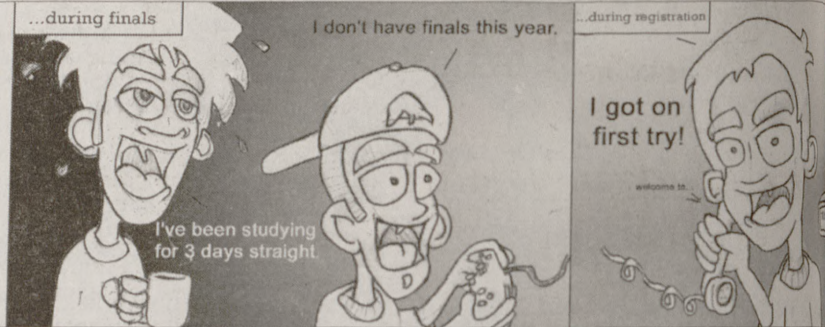

Yesterday's article "A&M denies licenses to retailers selling memorial T-shirts" incorrectly said that Collegiate Licensing "forced" Inspirations to remove its "Muster" T-shirts from its shelves. It should have read "Bonfire" instead of "Muster" T-shirts.

A spokesperson for Inspirations said Inspirations was not "forced" to remove the shirts but was asked by Collegiate Licensing to remove the "Bonfire" shirts because Inspirations had violated a licensing agreement by altering the design without University approval by adding a ribbon to the sleeve.

The spokesperson also said it was the owner's decision to donate the remaining T-shirts and profits to the Texas A&M Traditions Council.
