Two suspects arrested in death of a trucker

FORT WORTH (AP) — Two suspects have been identified in the death of a white Arizona trucker who was run over after defending his black friend from racial slurs.

Amy Burdick, 29, of Fort Worth, was in the Tarrant County jail Wednesday on a $25,000 bond following her arrest on a charge of murder. Police were still searching for Danny Lee Bell, 30, also of Fort Worth, who was being sought on a murder charge.

Fort Worth police believe that Bell and Burdick were the occupants of a vehicle that was used to run down James Thompson, 56, of Showlow, Ariz., during the early morning hours of Jan. 30.

Police reports say that Thompson was intentionally run over in a parking lot after he defended his friend from racial slurs made by a white couple in the car. Bell was allegedly the driver of that vehicle, and Burdick the passenger. Thompson died Sunday at John Peter Smith Hospital, where he had been in the intensive care unit with massive head injuries.

Police spokesman Lt. David Burgess said the suspects were identified through several tips investigators have received since the incident in the parking lot between Irene's Pink Poodle

Coffee Shoppe and the Pink Poodle Cocktail Lounge. The two buildings are adjacent to each other in an area a few miles north of downtown Fort Worth.

Thompson and his friend left the lounge after 2 a.m. and were on their way to eat next door when a couple in a car started yelling racial slurs, police said. Thompson's friend ignored the remarks and kept walking, but Thompson chose to defend him.

After a short argument with Thompson, the couple drove to the far end of the parking lot, turned around, accelerated and struck Thompson, according to the police report. The man and woman in the car sped from the scene.

The name of Thompson's black friend is marked out on the police report released to the public.

The friend, who identified himself as a bouncer at the lounge, told police that Thompson was a regular and that he did not see the couple inside the club that night.

A woman who answered the phone at Irene's Pink Poodle Coffee Shoppe identified herself as the manager. She refused to provide the identity of the black man, who she said was fearful of repercussions and didn't want to be bothered.

Drifter indicted in attacks

DEL RIO, Texas (AP) — A grand jury has indicted a 35-year-old drifter on capital murder and attempted murder charges five weeks after a knife attack that left one girl dead and a second seriously wounded.

Tommy Lynn Sells, 35, was indicted Tuesday. He is being held in the Val Verde County Jail.

Since his arrest, Sells, a former carnival worker who used to ride the rails, has become a suspect in killings in other states.

He was arrested Jan. 2 and charged in the assault two days earlier on Kaylene Harris, 13, who was killed, and Krystal Surles, 10, who was badly wounded. The girls were attacked as they slept in bunk beds at the Harris family home near Del Rio.

Sells has confessed to breaking into the mobile home and slitting the throats of the girls with a boning knife.

Harris died almost instantly, while Surles ran to a neighbor's house for help. She survived and helped create a composite portrait that identified Sells as her attacker and led authorities to him.

"He said, 'I thought I killed her too,'" Texas Ranger John Allen reported Sells as saying.

Since his arrest, police say Sells also has confessed to 10 killings in six states. So far, he is a suspect in at least three: one in Del Rio, one in Lexington, Ky., and one in Tucson, Ariz.

News in Brief

Rangers look in sexual misconduct

LITTLEFIELD, Texas (AP) — Texas Rangers are investigating the Lamb County Sheriff's Office for allegations that three jailers and a former sheriff's deputy had sexual relations with inmates allowed male and female inmates to have inappropriate relations while in custody.

One of the jailers and the former sheriff's deputy no longer work at the county jail.

The others continue to work there, and Lamb County Sheriff Jerry Collins told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal they face possible suspension based on the outcome of the investigation.

"I'm waiting to see what the investigation shows," Collins said. "They know I'm not going to turn my back on it."

Former jailer Pandy Aleman scheduled to go before a grand jury Thursday. Aleman has been arrested and charged with sexual misconduct.

Fine suggested for '99 explosion

AUSTIN (AP) — State regulators have recommended Tennessee-based J&A Mechanical be fined $20,000 for the 1999 year's gas explosion at a home that injured dozens and caused $600,000 in damage.

More than 30 people suffered minor injuries in the Feb. 6 blast at an Embassy Suites near Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

A committee of the Texas State Board of Plumbing Examiners recommended the fine because the company's plumbers who were improperly licensed.

The plumbers were working on the natural gas line for a swimming pool heater before the blast occurred.

A board investigation revealed the two plumbers were not licensed in Texas, nor was the Texas-licensed plumber working with them.
