Conference teaches leadership

BY ANN LOISEL
 The Battalion

Fifty Texas A&M students will gather to learn leadership skills based on the life of Jesus Christ at the Christian Leadership Conference (CLC) this weekend.

"CLC is all about bringing together A&M students from all walks of campus ... to learn how to lead a more Christ-like life and apply that to their organizations and then later on in life, too," said Reagan Winslow, CLC chair and a senior finance major.

Delegates will also learn about different A&M organizations and meet other Christian student leaders in small "breakout" groups.

"We're one way to help promote unity among Aggies," Winslow said.

Jason Hoyt, a senior finance major and a conference delegate for Brothers Under Christ (BYC), is attending the conference for many of the same reasons.

"My personal goal is unity among organizations and seeing God work through people this weekend," Hoyt said.

Hoyt said he also wanted to attend his first CLC to better represent his organization to other Christian leaders.

"BYC has a reputation for being secluded and to itself - focused on our own activities," he said. "I want to go and meet other Christian leaders on campus and see the whole campus reached for Christ ... this is a great unification for Christians on campus to reach our goal of spreading the gospel."

Jessica Gerard, assistant director for CLC and a junior speech communication major, said speakers at the conference will address how to be better, Christ-like leaders, also better "witnesses" to Christ's teachings.

The speakers include Randy Sims, director of Westview Academy; Dr. Fredrick A. Larson, a management professor and Kristi Overton-Johnson, a world-record holder in slalom water-skiing. 40 Days, a Dallas band, will lead worship services.

Students were selected by their organizations, signed up on an individual basis to attend the conference, Gerard said.

Winslow said Jesus Christ is the perfect leader to emulate and is an example for leaders.

"I picture Christ as a perfect, loving individual who is a blameless life ... never judged ... and died on the cross to save us from our sins," he said. "He never compromised, even though he was unpopular. He never strayed from his purpose - he's still known today," Winslow said.

Winslow first attended the conference two years ago as a delegate from his fraternity, Beta Theta Pi. He served as an assistant director before becoming the current CLC director.

CLC will be held Friday through Sunday at Camp Lamar in LaGrange, Texas.

TUITION

 has actually dropped 15 percent.

Private schools cost an average $15,000 per year; public colleges charge about $3,300 annually. About seven million U.S. college students receive some sort of aid. About 60 percent of the help a student gets to pay these bills comes from loans that average $3,000 a year, while grants make up less than 40 percent of available aid.

"If college becomes a luxury that an increasing percentage of our population cannot afford, it will expand the economic divide between the higher education haves and have-nots and stunt our economic growth," said Sen. Joseph Lieberman, D-Conn., the committee's top Democrat.

FUNDS

 the six years is up, even over and above the $650 million Cunningham said.

He added that the regents would likely re-evaluate approve new construction projects requiring PUF funds on a yearly basis.

UT-San Antonio will receive the largest amount of PUF funds—$84 million, accounting for 78 percent of total construction costs of $106 million.

The PUF money will be used by UT-San Antonio for four projects: constructing two new buildings, renovating the school's physical plant and upgrading computer equipment.

"UT-San Antonio is one of our largest institutions and for a long time we haven't really given them the dollars, that they need to move ahead," said Raul Romero. "I think that it's very important for us to serve the San Antonio population and the growing market."
