Bush airport cargo worker shot to death

HOUSTON (AP) — A airport cargo worker was shot to death Tuesday morning in an apparent robbery at a Bush Intercontinental Airport freight building.

The attacker ambushed Robert Kenneth Green shortly after 7 a.m. as Green, 56, entered the KLM airlines cargo area, Houston police said.

A witness with the victim told police he ran to a phone to get help and heard a shot. When the witness returned, Green was dead with a gunshot to the head, police said.

Police believe the attacker's motive was robbery. "His pockets were turned out and he was known to carry a large amount of cash with him," said Houston police spokesperson Fred King.

Green's money clip was found outside the building, as was a sweater, gloves and a bandanna believed to have been worn by the attacker.

The witness told investigators the attacker was roughly 5-foot-8 and wore blue pants and a blue shirt. During the assault, the attacker wore the bandanna over his face, police said.

Green, a longtime employee of Cargo Airport Services, is the second homicide victim killed on airport grounds, King said.

In 1972, four men killed an Eastern Airlines ticket agent before hijacking a 727 with 35 passengers and seven crew members to Cuba. The hijackers were later returned to the United States to face charges.

Remington mill

Jon Remington, a senior industrial distribution major, operates a computer-automated milling machine in Thompson Hall. He is finishing up his engineering technology project, which is a clock.

RHA

"Food Services has worked really hard to make sure that RHA is kept up to date."

Cast said students are eager to return to Sbsia, but she thinks the alternatives offered by the Department of Food Services are working well.

"The are a lot of residents who miss the experience and traditions of Sbsia," Cast said.

"But residents and students as a whole are pleased with the increased options. In fact, there has been an increase in off-campus students who have picked up meal plans."

A free barbecue at Spence Park Thursday at 6 p.m. and a Vegas-style casino Friday will highlight the activities for RHA Week.

The casino, which will be open from 7 p.m. until midnight on the second floor of the Memorial Student Center, will offer blackjack, craps, wheels of fortune and many other games at which participants can win raffle tickets.

"In all, we are going to raffle off more than $15,000 in prizes," said Josh Terkelson, director of RHA's casino and a sophomore industrial distribution major.

The prizes include two Aggie amonds, a $500 book scholarship and free meals at restaurants such as back Steakhouse, Johnny Carr and The Olive Garden.
