Combs nominated for fashion award

NEW YORK (AP) — This may come as a surprise to his music fans, but Sean "Puffy" Combs is a contender for a top honor in the fashion industry. That's right, fashion.

Combs, better known as music mogul Puff Daddy, is one of three new menswear designers nominated for an American Fashion Award. The winner will be announced June 15 by the Council of Fashion Designers of America at a gala at Lincoln Center.

As a representative of hip-hop culture, Combs has set a tone for fashion that made it a natural for him to move into the garment industry. He is chairman and CEO of the line called Sean John, after his first and middle names. The collection is targeted for males 12 to 40 and is designed by a professional staff. In its first year, the line, including jeans, shirts and T-shirts, had sales exceeding $32 million.

"Men's fashion was boring, to be honest," Combs said. "And it still is. I just felt it was unfair for us to not have fun like women get to have. They get to be fabulous and have some style and have an outfit they can put on and feel good about. We're gradually taking men into the zone of being able to feel beautiful, but still be able to be a strong man about it."

Combs knows a thing or two about fashion. His white suit, a signature style, is practically transport-

"We're gradually taking men into the zone of being able to feel beautiful, but still be able to be a strong man about it."

— Sean "Puffy" Combs, musician and fashion designer

ing. "The white stuff, to be honest, is like a personal, spiritual thing. White is a color I dream about the time. I feel safe in white because deep down inside, I'm an angel," he said in a telephone interview.

His first-ever show last February attracted a star-studded audience.

Not too many caused unnecessary highway accidents without being killed. Probably the road trip in some with death. The road trip country road scene the movie would still be in the real world and die. Or the road with no highway like the one to be greeted with the movie.

He's philanthropic, too, having founded Daddy's House Social Programs in New York City for homeless and foster children. His record company has a charitable division run by sister Keisha.

If that's not enough multitasking, Combs plays the leader of the New York crime syndicate in the upcoming film "Made," which is scheduled for release next year.

The mogul with a "Bad Boy" tattooed biceps, a penchant for Versace and a platinum-and-diamond cross necklace knows how to combine the brains of a musician with the style of a rock star.

"I never like to be pinpointed with my style," Combs said. "The complexity of my personality is a reflection of my style."

When it comes to clothes, "I've got a wide range of flavors that I like," he said. What's appealing about fashion, according to Combs, "is that you're supposed to experiment. It's your supply of color and you're a painter. You're supposed to have fun with it."

For his New York Fashion Week preview in February, Combs, 30, showed bare-chested male models dripping in $14 million worth of jewels and smothered in milk.

"This is a big social message going on," said CFDA president Stan Herman after the show. "When you saw those diamonds, you didn't want to look at them, you wanted to see guys wearing diamond necklaces and bracelets really worked."

Born in Harlem, Combs moved from intern at Uptown Records in New York City in 1991 to president. He was soon instrumental in creating the debut albums of Mary J. Blige and Jodeci. In 1993, he signed with Arista Records to distribute his Bad Boy label, launching a series of releases that went platinum.
