While results of the Hopwood decision are not very significant, results of the top 10 percent rule are visible.

"The number of top 10 applicants is increasing. Last year 4,812 were admitted. This year, 5,309 were admitted. We're seeing slight increases in African-Americans and Hispanics in the top 10 percent. We're also seeing an increase in white, non-Hispanic students in the top 10 percent, as well as an increase in the top 10 percent across all ethnic categories," Estrada said.

Lane said, "This is a good way to see student input. This study is a very useful resource to have. The campus climate survey helped us identify areas we need to work on in terms of diversity. We need to continue to work with students to identify problems. It takes time and a lot of work. We are moving forwards making this campus more diverse."

The results of these surveys will be presented to the 2001 Texas Legislature, with the intent of "giving the legislature information on how students feel about these issues, and increasing the relationship between students and administrators, and students and the Texas Legislature," Somers said.

Delia said. "In 1993 Ringling Bros. als."

PETA C1 opposed legislation which would limit the length of time elephants can be chained up.

Delia said the circus trainers ux chains, whips, electrical shock, base ball bats, and metal pipes to break the spirits of the animals and show them who is in charge, forcing them to per form tricks for the entertainment of "Wild animals were not made to do stupid tricks," Delia said. "Tiges do not jump through flaming hoops and bears do not ride bicycles in the wild. These tricks are not natural for them and never should be."

Although a spokesperson from Ringling Bros. was unavailable for comment on the protests, a Ringling Bros. spokesperson said in a news release that the animals are trained to do tricks based on observations made by their handlers. The expert handlers watch their animals closely while they socialize with other animals Then routines are created based on the moves trainers see.

Delia said Ringling Bros. and sup porters of the circus argue that anima circuses provide a place for children to see animals they would otherwix never see. However, she points out these animals give children the wrong idea about the nature of the animals

"When children see these animals they are seeing animals in their unni ural environment, doing things the would never do if they were m ment of animals and forced into the tricks," Delia said.
