Trucker executed for double slaying

(AP) — Former long-haul trucker Orien Cecil Joiner went quietly to his death Wednesday, proclaiming his innocence while insisting he was ready to die.

"My work on earth is done," Joiner said before receiving a lethal injection for the fatal slashing and stabbing of two Lubbock women who lived in an apartment next to him in December 1986.

Joiner's statement lasted less than two minutes.

He spoke matter-of-factly and nodded and smiled at a

"As I've said since the very first thing, I am innocent of this crime," he said. "And God knows I'm innocent, and the poor people that was murdered knows I am innocent. And when I get to heav- to 25 the number of conen, I'll be meeting you and we'll all talk.

Joiner, 50, said he felt sorry for the family of the victims, but that someday the real killer would be caught and another execution would have to take place.

"If it takes my death to make them feel happy, then I will bless them. I don't have hard feelings toward anyone because the Lord feels that it is my time to come home to him," he said.

The lethal drugs were administered at 6:11 p.m. Joiner was pronounced dead at 6:17 p.m. While being injected, he mouthed "I love you" to someone. Then he gasped, coughed and closed his eyes.

Joiner's execution brought Marie DeForest, 29, after seedemned inmates put to death in Texas this year. One more execution is set for later this month and at least six are scheduled for August.

"If it takes my death to make them happy, then I will bless them."

Authorities, however, determined it was Joiner who was responsible for the carnage.

Both victims were bound with duct tape. DeForest was stabbed 41 times, her throat was cut and the broken knife blade was left sticking out of her chest. Huckabee, her roommate, had her face and neck slashed plus four stab wounds to her chest. Both were raped during or after the fatal attacks.

Prosecutors produced a witness, a neighbor, who testified he saw Joiner near the victims' apartment with blood on his shirt and dripping from his hand. Tests of blood stains on

FBI uses 'Carnivore' for snooping Critics attack email interception program WASHINGTON (AP) — Civil liber-'assurance' that the FBI will record that allows them to intercept communications from persons other than ties and privacy groups are railing against a new system designed to allow law enforcement agents to intercept and analyze huge amounts of e-mail in connection with an investigation.

The system, called "Carnivore," was first hinted at on April 6 in testimony to a House subcommittee. Now the FBI has it in use.

When Carnivore is placed at an Internet service provider, it scans all incoming and outgoing e-mails for messages associated with the target of a criminal probe.

In a letter addressed to two members of the House subcommittee that deals with Fourth Amendment searchand-seizure issues, the American Civil Liberties Union argued that the system breaches the Internet provider's rights and the rights of all its customers by reading both sender and recipient addresses, as well as subject lines of emails, to decide whether to make a copy of the entire message.

Further, while the system is plugged into the Internet provider's systems, it is controlled solely by the law enforcement agency. In a traditional wiretap, the tap is physically placed and maintained by the telephone company.

'Carnivore is roughly equivalent to a wiretap capable of accessing the contents of the conversations of all of the phone company's customers, with the only conversations of the specified target," read the letter. "This 'trust us, we are the government' approach is the antithesis of the procedures required under our wiretapping laws."

Barry Steinhardt, associate director of the ACLU, said citizens shouldn't trust that such a sweeping data-tap
