Three dead in attack on West Timor office

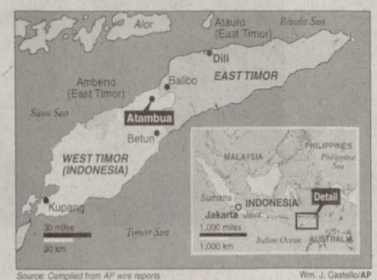

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Thousands of rioting refugees and pro-Indonesian militia members attacked a U.N. office in West Timor on Wednesday, killing at least three foreign U.N. aid workers, the Indonesian military and witnesses said. Sgt. Joseph Carvalho said an angry crowd beat the three to death and then burned their bodies along with a car in front of the U.N. office in the border town of Atambua.

The murdered victims were foreigners but their nationalities were not immediately known. However, Carvalho said a Brazilian U.N. worker was also badly injured.

U.N. peacekeepers in neighboring East Timor were preparing to enter Indonesian-controlled West Timor to evacuate other U.N. workers trapped in Atambua.

But Australian army Capt. Dan Hurren, attached with one unit in the East Timor border town of Suai, said a U.N. force would only enter with Indonesia's permission.

Officials at the headquarters of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees in West Timor's capital, Kupang, said contact had been lost with its besieged office in Atambua.

Agency spokesman Jake Morland said there were serious fears for their safety. He said 90 other UNHCR staff in West Timor were on standby for possible evacuation in case the violence spread across the province.

The U.N. agency has been delivering aid to an estimated 90,000 refugees who have lingered in bordering camps after fleeing violence in East Timor 12 months ago.

It has regularly complained that militia gangs, opposed to East Timor's independence from Indonesia, have attacked its staff and buildings in West Timor over many months.

Caravel said Wednesday's riot erupted a day after the murder of a refugee in the nearby town of Betun. He and other witnesses said as many as 3,000 mourners took the man's body to Atambua and staged a protest outside the UNHCR's office.

It was not immediately clear why the violence flared or why the U.N. workers were targeted. However, witnesses said some crowd members accused the United Nations of ignoring their plight.

Six European hostages to be released on Friday

ZAMBOANGA, Philippines (AP) — Six Europeans held hostage for months in a southern Philippine jungle will be freed Friday, their Muslim rebel captors said Wednesday.

Their release would leave one foreigner — an American — and 12 Filipinos in the hands of the Abu Sayyaf rebels.

Rebel commander Ghalib "Robot" Andang telephoned negotiators to notify them of the date of the Europeans' release, chief government negotiator Robert Aventajado said.

Andang had promised 10 days ago to free all the Europeans within two weeks. His rebel faction is holding two Finns, a French and a German, all kidnapped April 23 from a Malaysian diving resort, and two French journalists.

Negotiations for the release of American Jeffrey Schilling, 24, began Wednesday, officials said. Schilling is reportedly being held by a separate Muslim rebel faction.

Provincial Vice Governor Munib Estino, appointed by the government to negotiate for Schilling, traveled Wednesday to the Abu Sayyaf's camp on southern Jolo island.

The rebels have not announced their demands for Schilling's release, although rebel spokesman Abu Sabaya has privately demanded $10 million, negotiators said.

"Once I touch the ground, I will know what their demands and suggestions are," Estino said. The demands will be relayed to the Philippine Cabinet, and if acceptable, "then the job is finished," he said.

Estino said he met earlier with U.S. Embassy officials but declined to elaborate. Schilling visited the Abu Sayyaf camp Aug. 28. Philippine reports said the rebels seized Schilling, who converted to Islam in 1994, during an argument over religious and political issues.

The Philippine Daily Inquirer said Sabaya invited Schilling to the camp on Jolo, about 580 miles south of Manila, to discuss weapons purchases.
