OH MAN! I FORGOT THE CAREER FAIR WAS THIS WEEK !!

SO WHAT

IT'S JUST SO PHONY! ALL THESE PEOPLE SUCKING UP SO THEY CAN GET A JOB! I CAN'T STAND IT!

WELL, I REFUSE TO PARTAKE IN IT! I WON'T SUBJECT MYSELF TO THE HUMILIATION!

TEN YEARS LATER...

...SO I TOOK A STAND. I PRESERVED MY INTEGRITY!

DO YOU WANT THE QUARTER OR NOT?

We have to do something about that stupid ninjal. Last night he hollowed out the floor by my bed and laid a pit of spikes there!! I can't take much more of this!!

I think I have a solution.

HONORABLE CHUNKS OF BEEF!

Problem solved.

Cup of Jo BY NOTORIOUS L.I.B.

Oh my God... It's HUGE!

Wink

That's the biggest candy bar I've ever seen!!!

It's the new monster-jumbo-enormo-biggie-super-super-humongo-king size....

Thanks, want some?

exploring a world in which white men receive an undeniable privilege — an advantage over other races in every issue from hiring by white employers to being overlooked by police who seek members of other races as potential violators of laws.

Jensen shared testimony he has received from minorities. Jensen talked about a Hispanic man who joined what he thought was a color-blind fraternity. After a night of drinking, one of his white fraternity brothers turned to him and said, "I never figured out why you were in college anyway, since you're going to go back to picking beans."

Jensen told another story about an African-American man who was consistently stopped by police in his own neighborhood who did not seem to believe that a black man could drive a nice car and live in a nice area. Jensen said this story affirmed his belief that certain privileges do exist.

Rice, an African-American who first entered college at the advent of affirmative action, said he knows that his efforts to make the grade, graduate and continue through graduate studies were not the result of any program, but rather the result of his hard work to succeed.

The U.S. District Court for the Western District of Texas ruled in March 1998 in the Hopwood vs. Texas case that affirmative action is unconstitutional. However, many public universities within the state have initiated other incentives for admission,

News in Brief

Two lanes on University Drive temporarily closed

Two right westbound lanes of University Drive from O Street to Nagle Street were closed tonight, leaving one lane open to traffic, to repair leaking 12-inch water valve. Repairs will be begun at 10 p.m. today and should be complete by 6 a.m. Thursday.

The city of College Station said water service will be shut off during the repairs. Crews do not expect anyone without water during that time.

During the repairs, University Drive to Church Street will be closed from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. Thursday. If anyone experiences problems with water service at the time of the repairs, call College Station Utility Dispatch at 764-3836.

Correction

Tuesday's "TAPSS" column stated that the program is in its first year and is open to new staff faculty members.

The program is in its second year, but is open to all staff faculty members, as well as just new members, and is not open to faculty members.

Clarification

Tuesday's Texas A&M structure graphic did not include all of the departments that encompass the divisions. Departments were missing from the administration, finance and student affairs divisions.
