OUTBOUND

Continued from page 1... similar to Poor Yorick's, local Sterling C. Evans Library, will continue to serve pizza. Additionally, Outbound will be available at all of the ground Food Court locations. will see only one major change: removal of Taco Bueno, which Mexican food. Taco Bueno replaced by Se Wrappe, which large burritos, made-to-order and "grab-and-go" items. Outbound options have been received favorably by students, but largely off-campus residents. "I like it because it entertains everybody, not just on-campus," said Aaron Cox, telecommunications engineering major. Tim Fuentes, a freshman communications major, said he was excited about the new options. "It's good because I use it everywhere I eat," he said. But not all students are Outbound options. "I just don't get it," said a freshman recreation, tourism sciences major. "I can't understand the concept of how it can choose certain menu items each restaurant and be charged the same meal credit, but paying with Aggie Bucks can sometimes be expensive. For example, an International normally costs $4. With a meal plan, that would cost about $4. "It's great, especially when class," said Wade Howell, a political science major. Zawieja said Food Services is optimistic about the expanded menu. "The new Outbound is the biggest marketing plan we've ever had," Zawieja said. "You can eat anywhere, any time."

Correction

Thursday's Battalion covering the Residence Hall Association (RHA) meeting that Hart Hall residents asked that the Bonfire removed. The suggestion in residence hall clean out the Bonfire idea generated earlier president Josh Kaylor, who not been accepted official of the University. Kaylor gave a deadline for feedback. The resolution the students presented Wednesday to RHA asked Kaylor to the feedback deadline.
