CTN-TV would have had. It will be made up entirely of and student-made programs.

"Aggie TV is something [than CTN-TV]," Cortina said. "Instead of us promoting other promotions, we want to put our programming in. This is what we need. Other big universities do their own programming, and it is just as prestigious."

Filming for Aggie TV will be Nov. 14, and Cortina said she to have programming on the end of November. Aggie TV will be found on channels 82 to 85 residence halls.

Sasse said that CTN-TV and other programs may still be to fill the vacant stations A&M.

"We have six channels, so could be CTN, one could be productions by the students could be a scrolling screen events," he said. "The Screen Acting and Movie Production (SWAMP) club is interested in on this, and there is a pro called Residence Life Cinema they are looking at. So we are ing at a variety of things."
