AUSTIN — In a report released Monday, the Sunset Advisory Commission found that the attorney general's office has made significant improvements to its child support division, an area that was criticized as inefficient under former Attorney General Dan Morales.

Carjacking charges filed against five suspects in case

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Federal carjacking charges that could result in the death penalty were filed Monday against five suspects in the June kidnapping and murder of two college students.

News in Brief

The victims, Jason Burgeson, 20, and Amy Shute, 21, had just finished a night out dancing when they were abducted downtown, driven in Burgeson's vehicle to a golf course and shot in the back of their heads, police said.

The suspects had been charged in state court with murder and kidnapping. The victims' families sought to have them charged under a federal carjacking law so they could face the death penalty, which Rhode Island does not have.

Eunice Kennedy Shriver expected to fully recover

BALTIMORE (AP) — Eunice Kennedy Shriver is expected to make a full recovery from a postoperative infection, her son said Monday.

Shriver, 79, a sister of the late President John F. Kennedy, remains at Johns Hopkins Hospital, where she has been in stable condition for the past week, according to her son Mark Shriver.

16-year-old boy dies in hole collapse

OGDENSBURG, Wis. (AP) — A 16-year-old boy was killed when a 12-foot hole he was digging collapsed on him.

The body of Andrew J. Hartmann was found Sunday after rescuers excavated a spot adjacent to the hole. Hartmann was digging the hole looking for rocks, something family members said he enjoyed doing.

Rescuers used backhoes to excavate the hole and support planks to prevent further collapse, Brogaard said.

and remembers seeing construction everywhere.

"There were always where we had to go around construction," Kramer said. "I was building going on every day were not here in the 1970s."

He said he also remembers relaxed student body.

"Students were not concerned about jobs as they are he said.

Kramer also said the body was smaller and seemed close-knit.

"When you walked around campus, people always said 'how each other,'" he said. "You don't that really anymore."

1970 also brought tragedy to Texas A&M campus.

In March of that year, Maj. Earl Rudder, who served as the president of A&M and third president of the A&M system, died after a den illness.

"The entire community was mourning when Rudder died," ley said. "Everyone was affected."

Rudder's memorial service attended by more than 100,000 mourners, including former friends, family and former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Kramer also said the population of A&M had little city in 1970.

"There were very few American students on campus," said. "It was an almost all-white military campus."

The University was slow change segregated facilities to integrated ones.

"In 1974, there were still rooms labeled 'colored' and 'at Kyle Field,'" Kramer said.

During their senior year, members of the Class of '26 decided to one last walk to show their support for A&M. The three classes believed had never seen the ceremony, the same two students, the student one hand on the shoulder of a person in front and began to walk campus.

"I'm really looking forward getting together and remembering some of the times we have had our classmates," said Collin P. president of the Class of '01 and senior management information systems major.

"To walk around arm in arm with the people we have been studying here with and realize just how much the University has changed since we came here will be a cherished memory," Poage said.

A more recent tradition, Junior Walk, coincides with Elephant Walk and will take place today, the of '02 will participate in the game Law/Purvey Field. The juniors arrive at Kyle Field at 2:30 p.m. Over the relatively short span of junior E-Walk, it has grown become an anticipated new tradition.

Junior E-Walk began in 1992 after administrators threatened to cancel Elephant Walk if juniors did not "grooming" seniors with eggs, balloons and other objects.
