News in Brief

Microsoft server causes problems

SEATTLE (AP) — Technical problems with Microsoft's servers prevented customers from reaching some of the company's Websites on Wednesday.

The company said the "temporary problems" started late Tuesday.

The problems stemmed from some of Microsoft's domain name servers, the computers that connect users with particular Microsoft addresses, Microsoft said.

Among those servers not responding, meaning that customers could not access the Websites the servers handled, were the ones handling the company's home page, <http://www.microsoft.com>.

Other sites that had been inaccessible, including MSNBC.com and the company's main MSN.com address, returned to operation in the middle of the day.

FUBU designer pleads guilty to drug possession

GRETNA, La. (AP) — One of the creators of the FUBU designer clothing line pleaded guilty to possession of Ecstasy and resisting arrest and was placed on probation for a year.

Jay Martin, 30, of Palisades Park, N.J., entered the plea Tuesday. Authorities said he got into a scuffle with sheriff's deputies at the New Orleans airport in July and was found to be carrying seven tablets of the drug.

how it would work with the current library," Bowen said.

The Bush Library collections include 38 million pages of official and personal papers, 1 million photographs, 2,500 hours of videotape and 70,000 museum objects. The Foundation raised $42 million in private donations.
