

UNMAN

Connolly said the man had been brandishing a gun." A witness said she heard a popping sound, followed by smoke. After that, Secret Service agents tried to "drop it" and then he "slowly" fell to the ground," said the witness. Dan Halpert, a local columnist, said he saw the man from the White House grounds. "We were all running away," said Halpert. "Another witness told CNN the man was standing in the street and fired a few shots." He said the man was surrounded by police and initially refused to get on the ground. "Police were telling him 'it doesn't matter, put the gun down.' Then I heard police all rushed in." Connolly, the spokesman, said the man was wearing a dark jacket and a dark cap. He said the man was almost 50 years old and had a mustache. He said the man was wearing a dark jacket and a dark cap.
