WINE

Bonarrigo said finding a favorite wine comes from a willingness to experiment.

Consumers should read labels, and Bonarrigo said Messina Hof's wines are color coded and include legends and suggestions for what foods to pair with the wine.

Wine lingo should not intimidate consumers, Bonarrigo said.

Terms like "full bodied," "fleshy," and "robust" mean the wine will coat the inside of your mouth. "Delicate," "fruity" and "nectar," typically mean the wine will be sweeter, Bonarrigo said.

"Ultimately, it is important that this not be snobbish," she said. "You should drink whatever you want, but understand there are better pairings."

Bonarrigo said since wine cleanses the palette, it prepares the diner for the next bite of food and it will taste better.

"Wine is what makes the meal a dining experience," Bonarrigo said.

When cooking with wine, Bonarrigo said, one should also drink the wine they use in the recipe and she has developed recipes following the theory.

Garlic Roasted Chicken
Merrill Bonarrigo

Best Paired Wine: Messina Hof Chardonnay

- Ingredients
2 1/2lb. chicken
1-cup sour cream
1 tbsp. fresh lemon juice
1/2 cup Messina Hof Chardonnay
1 tbsp. minced fresh garlic
1 t. salt
1 t. celery salt
1/2 t. black pepper (coarsely ground)

2 t. paprika

Cut raw chicken into pieces and place in a roasting dish. Mix sour cream, lemon and Chardonnay together. Pour mixture over chicken and refrigerate overnight.

Remove chicken and roast in roasting pan. Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Add to roasting pan whatever vegetables you like to serve. Merrill usually quarters potatoes, quarters onions and sliced carrots. Roast for 60 minutes or until well done. Baste every 15 minutes and each piece so that each side is golden brown.

Presentation:
Serve in roasting pan or move to a decorative platter and garnish with tomato slices.
Yields: 6 servings
