Reel Critique

The Others
Starring Nicole Kidman
Directed by Alejandro Amenabar

When audiences realize The Others is rated PG-13, a feeling that they are in for a cheap thriller for children washes over them. However, Amenabar omits the gore and spooks the audience with the thrill of the unknown.

The Others is the first American feature from Amenabar, who directed Abre Los Ojos, a Spanish film starring Penelope Cruz.

The story takes place in a dark, Victorian mansion on a foggy hillside in 1945.

Kidman plays Grace, a near-psychotic 'mum' who keeps her children, Anne (Alakina Mann) and Nicholas (James Bentley), who are photo-sensitive, away from the windows to avoid the light. She explains to her new, suspicious and yet sometimes grandparent-like housekeepers, that any light brighter than that emitted from an oil lamp will cause a fatal allergic reaction.

Kidman captures the qualities of a headstrong mother who believes the noises she hears are her children or her housekeepers playing tricks on her, refusing to believe in any paranormal beings. She also displays her vulnerability when wishing for her husband's return from World War II and when she realizes the noises may not be a figment of her or her children's imaginations.

The film is more enjoyable when the audience walks into the theater not knowing what to expect.

The two-hour film may seem sluggish at first, but once the audience reaches the fast-paced climax, the pieces of the puzzle come together, and it is revealed that the director has fed the viewer bits of the puzzle, piece by piece. After the movie, viewers will catch themselves grasping for more pieces and clues that the director might have thrown at him to suggest such a surprise ending. (Grade: A-) and carnival games.

Cook-off teams from all parts of Texas are returning to Aggieland to show off their barbecue specialties. For $7 students will get a pass which they can use to sample specialty items from every cook-off team.

"A lot of students came out and seemed to have a great time last year," Graham said. "Everyone that came last year is probably coming back."

Sam Seidel, a senior animal science major and head yell leader, said he encourages everyone, current students and former students, to take part in the festivities. Seidel also said it is important for freshmen to come and experience First Yell because it will set the tone for their next four years at A&M. First Yell is the biggest yell of the year and Seidel said that it is a good way to see how special it is to be part of the 12th Man.

First Yell will definitely be a memorable experience with great food, awesome music and lots of laughs. It will be a good way for all Aggies, old and new, to come together and get pumped about the upcoming football season. According to Seidel, First Yell is "a special time for all Aggies to come and participate together in Aggieland."

This free service begins two hours before kickoff and runs until one hour after the end of the game to transport fans home.

Garrett said having the bus service which makes it easy getting to the games, but said that with most people leaving the game at the same time, the ride home can take awhile.
