Bible deflects bullet, saves teenager's life

NORTH FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — A mother allegedly shot dead her 6-year-old son Sunday but a bullet intended for his 16-year-old brother was deflected by the teenager's Bible, police said.

Leslie Ann Wallace, 39, was later shot by sheriff's deputies and hospitalized in critical condition.

Authorities said Wallace shot her son James Wallace at home, then drove to her family's church where she fired her shotgun at 16-year-old Kenneth Wallace as he stood outside.

overcoat he was carrying. Kenneth Wallace's arm had minor scratches.

"The Bible certainly saved his life," said Lee County Sheriff's Deputy Larry King. "Had his Bible not been in the way he would have sustained the brunt of the blast and very well could have died from that type of injury."

Authorities said that from the church, Mrs. Wallace drove to a pizzeria where her 19-year-old son, Gregory Wallace, was working and she pointed her shotgun at the store's manager. Police had forewarned Gregory Wallace that his mother may be en route.

Authorities said she went to a pay phone and called 911 to report the killing of James Wallace. Police found the body at the family's home.

As deputies pulled out of the car, she began firing at authorities, hitting her once.

King said police found depressant medication at home but did not give a name for the shootings.

"We're still sorting out things," King said. "The circumstances aren't clear yet."

He said charges against Wallace were pending.

Man wins $1 million in McDonald's giveaway

HOLLY HILL, Fla. (AP) — McDonald's hand-picked a formerly homeless day laborer and gave him $1 million as part of the restaurant chain's effort to restore consumer confidence in its sweepstakes promotions.

Patrick Collier, 35, and his fiancée, 29-year-old Sandi Fabian, had been frequenting the restaurant for about six weeks and lived across the street in a hotel room they shared with Collier's mother.

Corporate managers, who said they picked Collier at random, approached the two as they sat down just after 10 a.m. Saturday to have breakfast.

"I thought I had done something wrong, but I was confused when they handed me this certicate telling me I had won a million dollars," Collier said.

Just months ago Collier and Fabian were homeless, sleeping on cardboard boxes, earning $50 a day as laborers when they found work.

"I'm getting a Harley," Collier said. "I have a couple of houses."

"And one for me. He always said he'd be a house," added his mother, Judy LaBount.

McDonald's said its restaurant in Holly Hill, about five miles north of Daytona Beach, had about 50 winners selected at random to distribute five million grand prizes. Fifty people will also be awarded $100,000 awards during the giveaway, which runs through Monday.
