FOOTBALL

Jay Brooks tipped a Wyoming pass, and sophomore cornerback Jonte Buhl came down with the interception at midfield.

The Aggie offense made the Cowboys pay for their miscue, capitalizing on the interception, going 51 yards in eight plays to tie the game. Junior fullback Joe Weber scored from one yard out to knot the score at seven a piece.

A&M took the lead in the second quarter on a drive highlighted by a third and one pass from Farris to Joseph, who was all alone 15 yards downfield. Weber would add his second score a short time later, giving the Aggies a 14-7 lead.

The A&M squad would keep the momentum on the next defensive series when sophomore cornerback Sammy Davis picked off a pass and returned it to the Wyoming 21-yard line.

Just two minutes later, Weber completed the hat trick, scoring his third touchdown of the half and extending the A&M lead to 19-7. Farris nailed a pass to senior Bethel Johnson in the back of the endzone, giving the Aggies a 21-7 lead on the two-point conversion.

Farris, set a career high for passing, going 30 for 42 and racking up 342 yards on the night. Joseph also added 106 yards on the ground on 21 carries.

"Mark made some big plays for us," said A&M football head coach R.C. Slocum. "He did a good job of not taking the sack and dumping the ball off."

Silent strokes are lower-level strokes that patients do not notice. They happen when a vessel that delivers blood to the brain becomes blocked, causing brain tissue to die.

Scarring, called white matter disease, occurs in the brain's wiring and can impair intellectual ability and motor skills such as walking and buttoning a shirt. It increases with age. In the study, light drinkers were 32 percent less likely than non-drinkers to have scarring in their white matter.

Brain shrinkage, called atrophy, also has been linked to dementia.

"It's been clear that alcoholics have shrunken brains,"

Farris, behind a solid offensive line performance, was not sacked all night.

"When you start to see Mark scramble you have to break," said Porter. "He hung in there well and got us the ball."

The Cowboys would retaliate on their next drive, using the run to eat up yardage on their way to scoring their second touchdown of the night. The drive was the Cowboys' most impressive of the night, covering 80 yards on nine plays.

Farris and the Aggie offense mounted another attempt to reach the endzone and looked to be putting away the game before halftime. With only three minutes left in the half and the Aggies threatening, Farris was pressured and his hurried throw was intercepted in the endzone, proving to be a turning point in the ballgame.

On the opening drive of the second half, the Cowboys used the leftover first-half momentum and held the Aggie offense scoreless, while adding two field goals to pull within one point, 21-20, with two minutes left in the third quarter.

The Cowboy defense looked to stop the Aggies on an important third-and-four play, but Farris passed to junior Michael de la Torre for 17 yards and set up the backbreaking score for the Aggies.

With Farris scrambling away from Wyoming defenders, junior receiver Dwain Goynes found a seam in the middle of the field and raced to the goalline for the final score of the game.

"That was a big play," Farris said. "That was probably the play of the game, and we were glad to get it done."

Goynes touchdown gave A&M a 28-20 lead, and the Wrecking Crew defense stopped the Cowboys to seal the win.

"I don't think we were sharp in our execution," Slocum said. "We made too many mistakes and were not consistent on offense."

The Aggies will have a week off before hosting the Oklahoma State Cowboys at Kyle Field Sept. 22.

ALL-U

"We will give out awards like Best Greek Group, Best Resident Hall, Best Corps Outfit, Best Women's Group and others like that," Houser said. "We will also give out an important award like Most Outstanding Contribution to Unity or Most Outstanding Contribution to the Aggie Spirit."

The mission statement of the All-U League, as stated in a document presented by Houser, said, "The All-University League should serve the University community by providing students with a set of competitive activities and university-wide programs that build spirit and camaraderie, promote healthy competition and balance and bridge student groups."

The student body needs new ways of experiencing positive interaction and leadership roles, Houser said. With the discontinuation of some traditions, the breakdown of trust with administrators and the uncertain future of Bonfire, the All-U League will help mend some of the breakdowns and lack of unity.

"By no means is this intended to replace Bonfire or any traditions that are associated with Bonfire," Houser said. "It is intended to perpetuate the good qualities of the Aggie experience in a different form."

The kick off event was Thursday at Reed Arena. The awards and champions will be announced on Nov. 22, 2001 at Midnight Yell Practice before the football game against the University of Texas-Austin.

All-U League can be a great success and grow strong in the next few years, Houser said, but like any campus organization, its development depends on student participation and enthusiasm.

Mukamal said, "It was a bit of a surprise that it wasn't just alcoholics."

Alberts and Mukamal said patients should not change their drinking habits based on the study's findings.

"There's so many ways alcohol can affect a person's body that no one should be changing how much alcohol they drink on the basis of one or even two studies," Mukamal said.

Much of alcohol's protective effect against strokes is thought to stem from its ability to raise levels of so-called good cholesterol. Alcohol also is known to be a mild blood thinner. That can prevent clots from forming in blood vessels.

Alberts warned that the conclusions were skewed because researchers excluded some people, such as those who sufother starters from last season's squad that finished 17-3-1.

Guerrieri said that Stanford and California have built some momentum through their come from behind wins, while A&M has not had a chance to test its weaknesses yet.

"It would be a monumental task for us to get results against those teams without having had these problems," Guerrieri said, "I don't know what to expect."

Stanford and California will begin a tough stretch of games for the Aggies that features some of the best teams in the west.

Next weekend, A&M will face New Mexico and then play an exhibition game versus the Mexican National Team. The following week, the Aggies will travel to Seattle to face No. 4 Portland and No. 11 Washington in the Washington-Nike Classic.
