Smucker acquires Jif peanut butter

CINCINNATI (AP) — It's a $1 billion deal made in sandwich heaven: Peanut butter and jelly are getting hitched.

The J.M. Smucker Co., which makes a wide variety of jams and jellies, is acquiring the Jif peanut butter brand from Procter & Gamble Co.

The purchase price for the deal, which also includes the Crisco cooking oil brand and Jif and Crisco manufacturing plants in Lexington, Ky., and Cincinnati, is $1 billion in stock. Smucker management said it plans to retain all employees at the plants.

Investors found it a tasty combination, pushing both stocks higher.

Smucker, based in Orrville, said the deal will eventually almost triple its annual earnings and double annual sales to $1.3 billion.

P&G, which has been getting rid of underperforming brands for seven years, had announced in April that it intended to swap or sell the Jif and Crisco brands.

A.G. Lafley, P&G's chief executive, has said cooking oils and peanut butter have become generic commodities in the eyes of consumers, so the two brands did not show the prospects for sales increases that P&G wanted.

P&G stockholders will receive one share of J.M. Smucker stock for every 50 shares they hold in Procter & Gamble. Based on Smucker's closing stock price Tuesday of $25.89 per share, that would value the deal at $1 billion.

In midday trading Wednesday on the New York Stock Exchange, Smucker shares climbed 16.8 percent, or $4.36 a share, to $30.25 while P&G shares were up $1.43 a share to $73.97.

J.M. Smucker was founded in 1897, when the company's namesake and founder sold his first product — apple butter — from the back of a horse-drawn wagon. The company's products include fruit spreads, ice cream toppings and natural peanut butter. The family-run business has about 2,000 employees worldwide and distributes products in more than 70 countries.

Procter & Gamble markets more than 250 brands including Pampers diapers, Tide detergent, Pantene shampoo, Bounty paper towels and Crest toothpaste. P&G employs nearly 106,000 people in more than 80 countries.

MTV ad to battle anti-gay sentiment

NEW YORK (AP) — Asserting that more than 80 percent of gay students are harassed at their schools, an advocacy group joined Wednesday with MTV to release a series of public service ads aimed at countering anti-gay sentiment among teens.

The New York-based Gay, Lesbian and Straight Education Network said the ad campaign is the largest of its kind on any television network, and will run at least four weeks, possibly longer.

The first spot was timed to coincide with Wednesday night's airing of "Hate in the Hallways," an episode about anti-gay bullying on MTV's new weekly documentary series, "Criminal."

"MTV is playing a heroic role in helping us speak to young people who are likely to either experience or perpetrate hate crimes," said Jim Anderson, a spokesman for GLSEN.

GLSEN also released findings of a nationwide survey it conducted earlier this year of 904 gay, lesbian and bisexual students in middle and high schools.

About 83 percent of the students reported being verbally harassed in the past year because of their sexual orientation, and 21 percent reported being physically assaulted.

More than 84 percent of the students reported hearing anti-gay remarks often at school, and most said that faculty and staff rarely intervened when overhearing such remarks. More than 23 percent said they sometimes heard anti-gay comments from teachers and staff.

Nearly 70 percent of the students said they felt unsafe in their schools because of their sexual orientation, and more than 30 percent said they had missed at least one day of classes in the past month because of their fears.

"We hope these statistics and public service announcements will push young people to continue examining their own prejudices," said Brian Graden, MTV's president of programming.

The 10-second public service ads give graphic depictions of harassment. In one, a male student finds a slur about his sexual orientation carved into his desk; another shows a lesbian student with a bruised and bloody face.

MTV has tackled harassment of homosexuals before, notably with broadcasts and a public service ad prompted by the 1998 beating death of gay university student Matthew Shepard.

"These new spots are much broader, and get at the terrifying normality of this abuse," said MTV vice president Stephen Friedman. "'It's so gay' has become an all-purpose insult at schools."

Bomb threat closes border

HIGHGATE, Vt. (AP) — A bomb threat made to a business near the U.S.-Canada border and a suspicious vehicle prompted federal officials to close two major border crossings Wednesday.

Vehicles heading toward the ports of entry at Champlain, N.Y.,

The company's offices in Champlain, Highgate Springs and St. Albans were evacuated.

Officials were investigating the threat Wednesday afternoon and could provide few details. The only thing they said about the suspicious vehicle is that it was near Highgate.

"We're waiting for things to get checked," said Temple Black, a public affairs officer with the Immigration and Naturalization Service in Burlington.

Both of the closed border crossings are busy ones involving Interstate highways, 87 on the New York side, 89 on the Vermont side.

Also in Vermont, the owner of 14 hydroelectric plants along the Connecticut and Deerfield rivers posted armed guards this week after three suspicious men were spotted on a remote road near one plant over the weekend.

Officer Mike Chesaneck of the Bellows Falls police department, said the men spoke broken English and appeared to be from the Middle East or India. He asked them for identification, but did not detain them. He said they told him they were looking for American Indian rock carvings that can be found in the area.

"The caller said 'There's a bomb that's going to go boom.'"

— John Holzscheiter
Deringer marketing VP

and Highgate, Vt., were stopped by police Wednesday afternoon and directed to smaller border crossings, said Craig Jehle, port director in Highgate.

The call was made shortly before 9 a.m. to an office of Deringer, a customs broker and international freight handler.

"The caller said: 'There's a bomb that's going to go boom,'" said John Holzscheiter, Deringer marketing vice president and co-owner.
