suit was also filed in Galveston federal court and alleges the same civil rights violations. Scanlan, who is from Rockport, suffered facial and head injuries, said Stephen DeWolf, her Dallas-based attorney.

Besides Scanlan, DeWolf also represents the families of victims Christopher Breen, of Austin, and Lucas Kimmel, of Corpus Christi, and Bill Davis, 26, of Bellaire, who was injured and has had metal plates placed in his face, arm and leg. These lawsuits were also filed in a Galveston federal court.

Fort Worth attorney Darrell Keith is representing Jacquelyn Self, mother of victim Jerry Don Self, of Arlington, and the first to sue. Keith represents the families of victims Bryan McClain, of San Antonio, Christopher Heard, of Houston, and Chad Powell, of Keller, as well as Matthew Lynn Robbins and Dominic Braus, who were injured, and Braus' mother Nancy.

Jacquelyn Self's suit was filed in both Tarrant County Probate Court in Fort Worth and federal court in Galveston. While Keith represents Powell's family in federal court, Fort Worth attorney Geno Borchardt represents his family in the suit filed in Tarrant County probate court.

Besides suing in federal court, McClain's family filed a lawsuit in Bexar County probate court and Heard's family filed one in Harris County probate court.
