Missing 5-year-old girl found dead in El Paso

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Seven brothers and sisters leafed through a stack of missing-child fliers Monday bearing the photo of their little sister, who disappeared at a store the night before.

Several of the youngest children wondered whether to continue handing out the fliers, even after 5-year-old Alexandra Flores' nude body was found that morning in the parking lot of a doctor's office, about 18 miles from the Wal-Mart where she was last seen with her family.

The girl's mother, Sandra Rubio, said she sat the children down and told them that their sister had died.

"But they don't understand," Rubio said.

Store security cameras captured the San Elizario girl as she followed a man, believed to be a stranger, from the Wal-Mart on Sunday evening as her family shopped inside.

Police said the cameras also showed Alexandra with the man in the parking lot. He was wearing a white baseball cap, a dark green shirt, dark shorts, white socks and white tennis shoes.

Her family reported the girl missing about 6 p.m. Sunday after she became separated from them.

The girl, a preschool student at Loya School in San Elizario, was found beneath a parking lot awning behind a doctor's office in an area described by neighbors as a hangout for vagrants.

The preschooler's family spent Sunday night frantically looking for her in ditches, a canal and warehouses in Lower Valley.

But the next morning were contacted by police who identified the girl by the family to come to the scene, so the family identified the girl by authorities about a burn scar on her hand when she was four months from touching a heater.

Nancy Jacquez, teacher at Lorenzo G. Primary School, said the year-old was a cat who talked to everybody helped push another wheelchair.

Veteran El Paso law enforcement officers said they not remember the last which a child was abducted and killed by a stranger.

BUSH

according to documents received by the Austin American-Statesman on Monday.

White House spokesman Scott McClellan said Monday that UT is one of several interested institutions but said "it's way too premature to be talking about where a Bush library may or may not be located."

The Texas A&M System Board of Regents passed a resolution in January expressing interest in hosting the George W. Bush library at A&M. Brenda Simms, spokeswoman for the A&M System, said former regents, including Don Powell, now a Bush political appointee, had initiated an informal lobbying effort, but that no formal plans for the library have been presented.

Faulkner's three-page letter and accompanying maps detail a carefully thought-out proposal. Though Faulkner said he can't promise the state site, his letter states that he's already spoken with Gov. Rick Perry about a state and university partnership for the presidential library.

The university is working on a 25-year master plan for the Pickle campus. Faulkner says the Bush library could serve as its anchor.

The presidential library proposal is part of UT-Austin's plans through 2015 that Faulkner says he's presented in meetings this fall to top UT System donors and upper-level university personnel.

UT is already home to the Lyndon B. Johnson Library and Museum, which was built in 1971 and houses the papers and memorabilia of the Democratic president.

No two presidential libraries are in the same city, but Faulkner believes the Bush Library shouldn't preclude UT from having a Bush library.

Other possible Texas connections include Baylor University in Waco, with Bush's grandfather, Andrew, at Crawford just west of town; Southern Methodist University in Dallas, where Bush's mother, Laura Bush's alma mater and where she spent many years; the city of Midland, where Bush is where Bush began his business with his father, which was his last stop before heading to Washington for his inauguration; and A&M University at College Station, where Bush spent his father's library.

As for UT, Bush's daughter Jenna attended UT-Austin, brother Jeb is a graduate, nephew George P. is a law student.

Bush received his undergraduate degree from Yale University and his MBA from Harvard University.

Presidents pick the site for their presidential libraries, and private money pays for construction costs, but the national archives play an advisory role, said Susan Cooper, spokeswoman for the National Archives Records Administration, which directs the country's 12 presidential libraries.
