NEWS IN BRIEF

Illinois graduate students stage two-day strike

URBANA, Ill. (AP) — Graduate assistants went on strike at the University of Illinois to protest the administration's refusal to recognize them as employees with the right to unionize.

The first-ever work stoppage at the Urbana-Champaign campus began with about 50 teaching assistants marching and waving handmade signs that read No Union, No Teach and The U of I works because we do.

The Graduate Employees Organization voted earlier to hold a two-day strike starting Wednesday as part of their fight to form a union for about 5,200 graduate student employees.

Police officers charged with falsifying reports

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Three police officers have been charged with falsifying reports, including two officers previously reinstated to the force after being fired.

Marcellus Robinson and John Herbert, who had been acquitted of charges in the past, were arrested earlier this week.

The arbitration process lets people back to the force who should not be on the force, Deputy Police Commissioner John Norris said Wednesday.

In charges announced Wednesday, Robinson said Robinson and his partner, J. Thompson, falsified a narcotics arrest report in January 2000.

They were arrested Monday and charged with perjury, criminal conspiracy, false reports and related charges. They have been suspended 30 days with intent to dismiss, police said.
