Student food service workers serve up good work experience

By Beth Muldoon
THE BATTALION

For students like Brad Buffalo, a senior electrical engineering major, getting and keeping a job is a must for the first years at Texas A&M. Although Buffalo now receives financial help from his parents, during his freshmen and sophomore years, he had to provide for himself.

"I had to pay for nearly everything, including car insurance, food and gas, among other things," Buffalo said. "It was exhausting."

Buffalo has been working at the Time Out Sports Deli in the Student Recreation Center for four years and said he enjoys work for many reasons.

"I love the atmosphere at the Rec," Buffalo said. "I also get along with the people I work with, so that makes it easy to enjoy my job here."

Throughout their college years, many students may find it difficult to cooperate with their bosses and many of these negative experiences cause the student to quit their jobs. Fortunately for Buffalo, his boss has been extremely flexible and patient.

"I get along with my boss so well," Buffalo said. "She does a really great job of working with my schedule to give me just enough hours each week."

Balancing school, work, family and friends might be difficult for some students, but for Buffalo, he said it is simple.

"The management works really hard to work around our schedules," Buffalo said. "Especially if we have tests or something to study for."

The Rec Center plays hosts to a number of meets and competitions each semester and Buffalo said that is the only time when his job is stressful.

"Swim meets are challenging, especially if you've just come from a full day of school," Buffalo said. "Serving smoothies to a long line of people just isn't what you want to be doing sometimes."

Thomas Lopez, a senior psychology major, has been working at the Ag Cafe on West Campus for six months. Lopez said he enjoys working there because of the perks he receives as a student employee.

"We get a free meal everytime we work," Lopez said. "You can't get that anywhere off campus."

Another reason Lopez said he enjoys is because of the convenient location and part is that we don't have to work on week days.

Lopez said he worked at other places, but they would not or could not cooperate with his schedule. He said students must budget their time between school, work and life.

"Flexibility is the key," Lopez said. Managers are quick to understand and with us because of the schedules we have as students."

Like Buffalo, Lopez works to pay his own expenses and help him get through school. "I pay my own expenses with the help of my parents every now and then," Lopez said. "It's a little cushion, but I still have bills to pay."

Lopez said the worst part of his job is dealing with the garbage. "Dealing with the garbage is bad," Lopez said. "But at the same time, if you deal with the garbage, you don't have to work around people, so it's not that bad."

Kelly Threadgill, a junior education major, has worked in the 12th Man Cafeteria for two months. According to Threadgill, there are many good things about working on campus.

"It's too convenient and too good to be true," Threadgill said. "You just can't complain about working on campus."

For many students like Threadgill, working on campus is an important factor to consider when deciding between studying and working.

"I work 15 hours a week," Threadgill said. "But our managers are quick to understand that school is the first priority, and they will work with you if you have a problem with working with students' schedules."

Threadgill said most people think working on campus is horrible, but she could not disagree more.

"When I tell people that I work on campus they make this face like they feel sorry for me," Threadgill said. "But it really isn't bad."

Threadgill said another thing that makes working on campus is the fact that she can register early for her classes.

"It's definitely a plus," Threadgill said.

People In The News

Dylan gets ready to take on the big screen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Dylan is in talks to take on his first major film role in 15 years, a producer on the project said.

The musician could star in an Intermedia Films project tentatively titled "Masked and Anonymous," said Nigel Sinclair, one of the film's producers.

"He is very interested in the project," Sinclair said. "We're working out some of the details with him."

A spokesperson for Dylan did not return a call seeking comment.

The film, which has been in development for about a year, would feature Dylan in the role of Jack Fate, a troubadour who is brought out of prison by his former manager for one last concert.

It is uncertain whether Dylan would write new music for the feature. But some old tracks could be used in a scene where the lead character performs with his band, Sinclair said.

Shooting is scheduled to begin in June. Dylan's last starring role came in the 1987 Warner Bros. release Hearts of Fire. He also costarred in Sam Peckinpah's 1973 western Pat Garrett and Billy the Kid.

Fox hosts "Celebrity Boxing" special

NEW YORK (AP) — Tonya Harding and Amy Fisher are getting ready to rumble.

The pugilistic divas will face each other in "Celebrity Boxing," a Fox special scheduled to air March 13. The network is billing the fight as "the battle of the bad girls."

Also on the special, former "Brady Bunch" star Barry Williams will be pitted against Bonaduce, once part of TV's "Partridge Family."

The network said the fights will be the longest lasting three rounds.

Harding gained notoriety when, in 1994, the figure-skating champ was involved in a bungled plot hatched by her ex-husband to banish her Olympic rival Nancy Kerrigan from the Olympics, Harding pleaded guilty to conspiracy.

Amy Fisher made headlines as "the Island Lolita" when, as a teenager, she had an affair with auto mechanic Joey Buttafuoco, who shot and wounded his wife in 1992. Fisher served almost seven years in prison.

A third celebrity-boxing pairing has been announced, Fox said.
