By not taking out terrorist camps in rogue states America made itself vulnerable to attacks by Muslim fanatics, Brook said.

The United States supported the United Nation's 1948 decision to establish Israel, and became an important supplier of arms for the new nation. Recently, the U.S. has continued to increase pressure on Israel to make concessions to its Arab neighbors, Brook said.

Brook said there will only be peace once Israel is seen as strong and indestructible and Arabs abandon their quest to destroy Israel, but that will never happen until America throws its weight decisively behind Israel.

"America has not done enough in supporting Israel," Brook said.

Although both sides have staked a claim on the same tiny sliver of land in the Middle East, the Israelis earned their right to the land and they have only entered war when forced to by Arab aggression, Brook said.

The Israelis came to a largely barren land and built cities, grew crops, brought industry and built universities, Brook said. Arabs in Israel are more prosperous and free than in any Muslim country, Brook said.

"The Israelites took Western civilization into the Middle East," Brook said.

The Arabs responded to the civilization with violence, and proceeded to harass and attack Israel to rid the land of the Jews, Brook said.

The Palestinians were the aggressors in the first war of 1948, and since have forced Israel to enter four additional wars, all in self-defense, Brook said. The war of 1948 was not fought by the Arabs to establish a state, but because all of these Arab countries wanted the land for themselves, Brook said.

Palestinians do not deserve statehood because they refused it when it was offered, they resort to violence, they do not recognize or respect Israel and they have a brutal dictatorship, Brook said.

Sgt. Allan Barron, crime prevention specialist with the TAMU Police Department, informed about alcohol-related legal consequences of drinking.

"We want to provide information so that if they do get into trouble they can make responsible decisions and do it safely," Barron said.

The Omega Delta Phi fraternity distributed a pamphlet Tuesday that included information on drinking, traveling, security and sex. Marissa, a member of Omega Delta Phi and a sophomore general manager, said the fraternity's effort Brothers Drunk Driving. They have waterguns and watergun containers with drinking water on them.

"Students can take waterguns and containers to the beach or wherever they go," Lopez said. "Having water guns and containers remind them of the drinking and driving and make a wrong decision."

"Aggies, in general, are about taking care of each other," Olvera said. Organizations have helped to make sure Aggies return back safely after spring break.

Today, Responsible Decisions will be passed out at bus stops with safety information.
