Kleinecke said. "She gave it everything she had on Sunday and just fell short. She has come on strong as of late, and it has been a big help for the team."

The doubles point promises to be an important part of the match for both teams. Iowa is 4-0 when winning the doubles point and 0-7 after losing the point.

Meanwhile the Aggies are 12-0 after winning the doubles point and 0-2 when they fail to win the point.

"Doubles is always a key point," Kleinecke said. "Not only is it a point, but it gives the team momentum and sets the tone for the rest of the match going into singles."

The No. 14 team of Ashley Hedburg and Jessica Roland hope to continue its strong play on the doubles courts, while the No. 59 duo of Leah Killen and Martina Nedorostova will try to finish off the doubles point and improve the Aggie record to 13-0.

The match is one of two home matches this week for A&M before the Aggies enter a six game stretch on the road against five Big 12 opponents and the University of Houston.

First serve is scheduled for 6 p.m. at the Varsity Tennis Center.

strong performances on the mound and at the plate. Freshman Adrian Gregory continues to lead the offensive production for the Aggies, posting a .369 batting average and a .454 on-base percentage.

The University of Houston

Cougars (21-12) are batting .295 as a team and could pose a threat to the Aggies' pitching and defense.

"The Cougars are doing really well offensively this season with strong hitters," Evans said. "We will have to work hard defensively to shut them down."

The Aggies meet the Cougars in Houston at 7 p.m.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Aggies continue spring practice

The Texas A&M football team had its second day of spring drills Tuesday, practicing for about two hours in shorts and helmets on the grass practice fields. Junior linebacker Jarrod Penright was limited to light jogging while the rest of the team practiced. Penright is still recovering from off-season surgery.

"I thought we've had a good enthusiasm with our guys and they've worked hard in both practices," said A&M head coach R.C. Slocum.

The Aggies will take Wednesday off and practice in pads Thursday.
