Gigs for Austin band Red Five Standing By spell victory

By Thomas Phillips
THE BATTALION

After less than three months, Red Five Standing By, an Austin-based punk band with College Station roots, began to concentrate on its live performances. However, the group has already found itself creating a disturbance.

"One of our main strategies and goals and reasons for being in this band is because, say one of us asks a girl out. She's gonna say 'no' most likely," said David Kiesel, guitarist for Red Five Standing By and a senior civil engineering major. "So what happens the next time we're in front of a big crowd of 15 or 20 people? We can sing a song about how she's weird or crazy or something, and sweet revenge is ours."

The band — Kiesel on guitar, bassist and lead vocalist Craig McClain, Class of 2000, and drummer Brandon Johnson — started a bit of a dispute by sticking to this policy when it received "Hey Ashley," a song about a real girl, and included her voice on the track.

Ashley has since petitioned the band with a list of demands including that her name be removed from the song.

"Some girls don't like it when we sing songs about them and record them," Kiesel said. "They don't like when you record their answers on a machine without them knowing it and put it on your CD."

The group's ambitions stretch beyond announcing its estranged love interests, however. Live performance includes punk renditions

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

Britney Spears upsets London fans

LONDON (AP) — One day after fans booed Britney Spears at the London premier of her film, the spokeswoman blamed the appearance on security concerns. Many of the 3,000 fans were irate after the pop star's appearance outside the Odeon Cinema in Leicester Square on Monday night, where they waited hours to see her. When Spears finally turned up an hour late, she went inside waving to the crowd for only a few minutes. The 20-year-old singer did not sign any autographs. British tabloids made a big deal of the snub Tuesday, quoting young fans who had been bitterly disappointed by their idol. Fran Handley, 16, said she waited for nearly six hours in the hope of getting an autograph. "All I saw was a flash of sequins and that was it. It wasn't worth my time," she said.

Woody Allen to shoot movie in N.Y.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Woody Allen has definite ideas about how to film New York City without the World Trade Center as part of the skyline. "I'm one person who feels that one has to treat this realistically," he said, referring to the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks. Allen made a rare appearance at Sunday's Oscars ceremony to introduce a montage of film clips shot in New York City. The tribute, by filmmaker Nora Ephron, included clips from Allen's Manhattan and other films. "I didn't write it out but thought about it in my shower," Allen, who lives in New York City, told reporters.
