Rumsfeld described bin Laden as "a very senior al-Qaida leader who has been intimately involved in a range of activities for al-Qaida."
"There is no question that having an opportunity to visit with him is being sought," Rumsfeld said.
U.S. officials said bin Laden's names, faces and locations are being tracked. al-Qaida operatives are being hunted over and may also know bin Laden is hiding.

"He will know the organization of al-Qaida, if he talks"

— Stan Bedington, former terrorist analyst

Stan Bedington, a senior terrorism analyst with CIA, called bin Laden's capture "a major, major victory." "He will know the organization of al-Qaida, if he talks," Bedington said. "Osama bin Laden is a master planner. He must have made some gency plans (for a major military pursuit). If bin Laden was privy to any of my planning, then obviously he is a lot, possibly even a major player in the Osama bin Laden would be a very different person as you know. He has r... music. research in the A&M area with the fear that the local community would not support it.
"It was something different and new to them," he said.
However A&M administration supported him and allowed him to teach a class devoted only to the subject of hip-hop. The first day of class attracted so many students they were sitting in the aisles, he said.

To keep the newer generations informed, Coleman said, he wants to offer more classes on African-American literature and hip-hop.
"I want to shed the stereotypes other institutions have of A&M and send a clear message," he said.

This is Coleman's second year at Texas A&M University, following a career in teaching at the Veterans Military Institute as a substitute professor in the Department of Behavioral Science and Leadership.

said she does not advise on how safe an apartment complex is based on monthly calls for service, but said she would be leery of complexes that have a high number of calls and low number of apartment units.

"I would question it a little more," Scott said. "I'm not saying whether or not an apartment is good or bad, but why are police officers there more?"

late senator, was on the defense list, as were Skakel's brothers, Steven and Thomas, and his father.

The prosecution's list includes Thomas Skakel's attorney and Kenneth Littleton, who at the time of the killing was a live-in tutor in the Skakel house. Both Thomas Skakel and Littleton were at one time considered suspects in the murder.
Moxley's body was found on Halloween under a tree in her yard. She had been out the night before with other teens, including Michael and Thomas Skakel. She had been beaten with a golf club that matched a set owned by the Skakels.

Authorities suspected Thomas Skakel for years, but switched their attention to Michael in 1991 after his family hired private investigators in an effort to clear both brothers. Statements he gave them about the night of the murder differed from what he had long told police.

Prosecutors say he confessed to the crime in the late 1970s while attending Elan School, a substance abuse facility in Poland Spring, Maine.

Gregory Coleman testified last year that Skakel told him, "I'm gonna get away with murder. I'm a Kennedy" when the two attended Elan.

But Coleman, 39, later admitted he had injected heroin just before testifying. He has since died, one of many challenges for prosecutors facing fading memories, reluctant witnesses and credibility issues.
