ELK GROVE, Calif. (AP) - The principal ACLU and the National Education Asse at T.R. Smedberg Middle School held meetings last week for parents to discuss their children's scores on standardized tests. There were four dle school held racially separate meet meetings in all, with separate gatherings for whites, Asians, blacks and Hispanics.

The principal, who is black said the segregated meetings were to "get real honest answers" from black and Hispanic parents, whose children are among the lowest scorers, and to allow them to speak freely, without embarrassment.

But the separate-but-equal meetings at the public school troubled some parents in Elk
