VOYAGES Into TRANSCENDENCE

"There is a silver stream that runs along the banks of space & time -- from Eternity it flows and cataracts through my heart. I see its glimmer at the corner of my eye, its music at the edges of my hearing."

Nguyen signs year

IRVING, Texas — Stephen Jones has run the Cowboys with the linebacksers needing to be rotated often. By signing Daunte

Tuesday, Jones has changed his thinking. Nguyen, who received a $13 million, six-year contract, is the middle of Daunte's expensive linebacksers.

He will be flanked by Hardy, who signed a $1.5 million bonus and a $25 million salary, and DeLoach, who received a $25 million year deal last March.

Before Coakley signed, the Cowboys' linebacksers as free agents most at any position. Randall Godfrey, Ken Jr., Darrin Smith, Rolando and Godfrey Myles.

Nguyen, a third-round pick in 1999 after a standout Texas A&M, was thought to be too small for the NFL. Injuries limited his first year, but he played all 16 games last season and recorded 12 sacks, second-most in team history.

"When I came out of college, I was a question mark," Nguyen, the son of Vietnamese immigrants, said. "They told me I was not a part of something special."

Jones' commitment to the linebacksers is part of an overall strategy on defense this season. The Cowboys also signed defensive tackle DeMarcus

Glover and cornerback Terence Newman. Westbrook, the only free agent signed, is a backup whose primary job will be to replace the snapper.

The goal for the defense is to produce turnovers and sacks. "They already have a reputation for coming up with big plays," he expects his new teammates to help him come up with more.

"We're going to have a match somewhere down the line," he said. "They're going to be able to block a backer all day."

Nguyen, a restricted free agent, had received a $12 million qualifying offer. The offer sheet or receive a second-round pick as compensation will count only $1.3 million against the salary cap under the new deal.

His salary jump to $1,625,000 next season does not have another big contract until reaching $3 million in 2007.

"It's a very solid contract," Cowboys vice president Stephen Jones said. "It makes a lot of sense for us."

Results of DNA test obtained

BOULDER, Colo. — Police have obtained the results of DNA samples gathered in an investigation into an alleged gang rape involving University of Colorado football players and recruits.

CU police Lt. Tim Moore said Tuesday that authorities would interview several suspects before deciding whether to charge. The investigation could be complete by the end of the month.

Four CU football players and two recruits from California and Texas submitted DNA samples for testing conducted by the Colorado Bureau of Investigation.

Boulder police Cmdr. Pelle said the CBI analyzed pieces of DNA evidence from suspects and the crime scene.

The rape is alleged to have occurred at a Dec. 7 party thrown for football recruits and hosted by four women at an off-campus location, was not a sanctioned recruiting event.
