SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — A woman who says her trucker boyfriend beat her and held her captive for six months thanked a janitor and Tennessee police Wednesday for answering a plea for help she scrawled on a restroom wall.

"I'd probably be dead now if it wasn't for them," Katina Shaddix said on ABC's "Good Morning America."

Binford Aycock was cleaning the bathroom at an Interstate 75 rest stop Friday in McMinn County, Tenn., when he found a message scrawled in black marker: "Won't let me out. Beating me, this is no joke!" The message also referred to "Cannon truck 383."

Aycock called 911, and officials used a satellite positioning system to trace the truck to a rest area on Interstate 16 in Georgia. The boyfriend, a trucker with Cannon Express Corp., was hauling light bulbs to a Wal-Mart in Douglas, Ga.

Shaddix, 24, told police that she had hidden a marker in her sock and left more than 30 messages in restrooms from New York to Tennessee.

She was released Wednesday from the hospital.

The truck driver, Shannon E. Jones, 26, of Delhi, N.Y., was charged Wednesday with kidnapping based on investigators' interviews with Shaddix. He has been jailed since Saturday on aggravated assault. Sheriff's Maj. Cass said Jones does not have an attorney and has not speak to investigators.

Knight said investigators planned to meet Thursday FBI agents, who have look into whether Jones be charged with crimes Shaddix in other states.

Shaddix said she has with Jones for six months. She said he abusive two months relationship, and he let her leave him.

"He started beating and I started asking him to let me go," she said. "He let me out. He was beating me and I couldn't get no help."

Aycock said he had message was for real. "It said it's no joke," he made me pay attention. Aycock told "Good Morning America." "I called 911 and turned it over to them."

Shaddix said she found her just in time. "That night I had Shannon it didn't matter going to get out," she didn't matter if he killed Cannon president.

Cannon said the 1/2000 cooperating with the FBI.

Cannon said Shaddix has a company form on him. izing he as a rider in Jones
