building in phases, the Hospice can raise money over time and still be able to run its facilities.

Magnuson and Bodegas designed a courtyard area in the center of one large building that included a pond, donor walls and a memory garden with a brick path that has the name and life span of each resident.

"This is a unique project," Magnuson said. "It integrates the business side and the hospital element."

Mann said several of the teams experimented with expanding the current hospice facility located at 8811 Gaylord Ave. in Houston. But, he said, the students determined that the site is not large enough to accommodate the center's anticipated future needs.

summons," Cates said. "Everybody knows everybody."

State District Judge Vic Cunningham, who moved the trial to East Texas, made the unusual move of publicly naming the eight women and four men selected for the jury panel. Participants in the trial are barred from talking about the case outside the courtroom.

"In Dallas, no one knows anyone else on a jury. Here everyone knows one another," Cunningham said recently. "We are hoping by knowing who is on the jury, people will observe the rules and make it a point to not ask them questions or talk in front of them about the case."

The panel includes a machinist, bookkeeper, retirees, former Texas Department of Corrections manager, truck drivers and a nurse. Four jurors work at the Mount Vernon Independent School District.

Defense attorneys Mike Charlton and Gary Taylor were hired by Rodriguez's family.

Rodriguez is the third of the escapees to be tried in the case.

Hawkins was shot 11 times and run over with a vehicle in the parking lot of an Oshman's Sporting Goods store while trying to stop a robbery by the inmates, who escaped from the Connally Unit in South Texas on Dec. 13, 2000.

The inmates stole $70,000 in cash and a large cache of weapons from the Irving store.

Rodriguez was serving a life sentence for capital murder in San Antonio when he escaped. He was convicted of paying a man $2,000 to kill his wife so he could collect $400,000 in life insurance.

Rodriguez's wife was shot in the head in July 1992 after she came home from a movie.

Investigators said the defendant's father, Raul Rodriguez, helped pay for the escapees' getaway vehicle, which was delivered by family friend Gomez, 41.

Two others in the George Rivas and Newbury, received the penalty for Hawkins.

The remaining three escapees Randy Halprin, Joseph and Patrick Murphy face capital murder charges.

A seventh escapee, Harper, committed suicide than he captured when he cornered by authorities Colorado about a month after escape.

Residents in this area based town said the change would not change facts or fairness of the case.
