3 die in motorcycle gang shooting

LAUGHLIN, Nev. (AP) — Thousands of bikers rumbled out of town Sunday as investigators sorted out the details of a casino brawl between rival motorcycle gangs that left three people dead. Dozens of extra police patrolled the streets to guard against possible gang retaliation at one of the nation's largest motorcycle festivals. "It's just a mass exodus," said Sgt. Chuck Jones of the Las Vegas police department, which has jurisdiction over the casino town 80 miles southeast of Las Vegas. "If you go on the highway right now, it's just motorcycle after motorcycle as far as you can see."

Gamblers ran for cover Saturday as 60 to 70 people fought in Harrah's hotel-casino. Police said gunfire erupted when an argument between the rival Mongols and Hells Angels gangs escalated. "Blow by blow, stab by stab, and shot by shot, we know exactly what happened in that casino," said Las Vegas police Lt. Vince Cannito, who was watching casino surveillance tapes. "If there is any other event that precipitated what happened in the casino, we may never know." All three of the dead were gang members involved in the fight, police said. Calvin Schaffer, 33, a member of the Hells Angels, was arrested Saturday on suspicion of murder, Cannito said.

Fort Worth may get light-rail system

FORT WORTH, Texas — City officials say a multi-billion-dollar bond package for a light-rail system for Fort Worth could be presented to voters sometime in the next 18 months. The Fort Worth City Council on Saturday discussed the possibility of building a light-rail system — at a projected cost of $120-200 million — during a biannual retreat, held in a nearby suburb of Westlake. If voters approved the package, the system could be operating in Fort Worth by 2010. "I think this is a major community decision, a major community commitment," Fort Worth Mayor Kenneth Brown said in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram's Sunday edition. "We will spend millions of dollars on it and lay the groundwork for spending millions more." "We need community buy-back." Several proposals are being considered for Fort Worth, officials said, including electric vehicles, such as streetcars. City officials have long dreamed of the benefits of a light-rail system, saying it can boost economic development and cut down on pollution by getting motorists out of their vehicles. A city-sponsored poll, presented Saturday, showed that 71 percent of 1,600 residents polled were "very or somewhat supportive" of developing a light rail system in Fort Worth that connects surrounding suburbs with downtown. Twenty percent are not supportive and 9 percent are not sure, according to the survey. "It's a clear mandate," Fort Worth Manager Gary Jackson told the newspaper. City officials said local residents may support light rail because they've seen a similar example that works, the Dallas Area Rapid Transit system.
