U.S. bombs Afghan village

Civilian casualties reported after air attack

SOURCES: Associated Press; ESR

KANDAHAR, Afghanistan (AP) — U.S. planes bombed a village in central Afghanistan Monday after the U.S. military said American forces came under fire. Afghans said villagers were celebrating a wedding and scores were killed and injured, including many women and children.

Reports of the incident were conflicting. The Pentagon said the aircraft attacked a suspected hostile target but suggested an errant bomb may have caused civilian casualties.

The U.S. Central Command, which is responsible for military operations in Afghanistan, said a coalition operation in Uruzgan province "may have resulted in civilian casualties."

"Close air support from U.S. Air Force B-52 and AC-130 aircraft struck several ground targets, including ammunition and artillery sites that were supporting the aircraft," the brief said, providing no other details.

At Bagram air base, military spokesman Col. James King said an AC-130 gunship, a B-52 bomber and other aircraft joined the attack after coalition ground forces came under fire.

"We understand that there were some civilian casualties in the operation, but we do not know how many casualties or how they occurred," King said. "The United States expresses deepest sympathies to those who have lost their loved ones."

He said at least four people were injured and treated by U.S. forces. Bismullah, commander-in-chief of Uruzgan province, said Afghans in the village of Kankarak, about 175 miles west of Kabul, were targeted by weapons in the air during the wedding as is common in Afghanistan when U.S. planes attack, killing about 40 people and injuring 70.

Noor Mohammed, leader of neighboring Gujran district, reported the same casualties and said Afghans were "upset because innocent people have died."

In the southern city of Kandahar, where many of the victims were taken, Afghans said the attack began about 2 a.m. and lasted for about two hours. A nurse at the Kandahar hospital, Sher Mohammed, said he believed that about 120 people were killed.

Hospital officials said many of the dead and injured were women and children. One woman, a 6-year-old girl named Paliko, was brought to the hospital still wearing her party dress. Villagers said all members of the family were killed.

Another injured child, 7-year-old Malika, lost her mother, father, a brother and a sister, according to neighbors who brought her to the hospital. "We have many children who are injured and who have lost family," nurse Mohammed said. "Their families are grieving. The villagers brought these children and they have no parents. Everyone says that their parents are dead."

Meanwhile, a Pentagon spokesman said a B-52 was on a mission against a cave complex in Uruzgan — an event that appeared unrelated to the reported anti-aircraft artillery fire that went astray, he said.
