U.S. officials worried al-Qaida targeting petroleum interests

WASHINGTON — The terrorist bombing of a French oil tanker off Yemen and a foiled attack on a Saudi oil complex has American counterterrorism officials worried that al-Qaida is targeting petroleum interests in the Middle East.

Recent statements attributed to senior al-Qaida leaders also suggest economic interests, including oil, are being considered for strikes.

Saudi authorities reported averting an attack on a major pipeline and oil terminal complex this summer, said a U.S.

defense official, speaking on the condition of anonymity.

Documents recovered during the war in Afghanistan also suggested al-Qaida was planning strikes on oil interests, another defense official said.

North Korea plans to be 8th nuclear power

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Korea's declared determination to become the world's eighth nuclear power has prompted a flurry of U.S. diplomatic activity as the Bush administration, its policy of engagement with Pyongyang discredited, ponders its next steps.

Undersecretary of State John

Bolton met Thursday with officials in China, a major trading partner of North Korea's and perhaps the one country capable of extracting concessions from the communist nation through economic sanctions, an administration official said.

At the White House, reporters were told the Chinese were stunned upon learning of North Korea's acknowledgment to U.S. officials that it was pursuing a nuclear weapons program.

A U.S. delegation had confronted North Korea with evidence gathered over the last several months, including recent bills of sale, that Pyongyang had been working to enrich uranium for nuclear weapons.
