Woods 'teed off' about political billboards

DETROIT (AP) — Tiger Woods is teed off about six billboards using his likeness that call for the passage of a state ballot proposal. Woods' agent Mark Steinberg said neither he nor Woods gave permission for the ad. "The most disappointing thing is that a political position is stated and that's just wrong, so outrageously wrong," Steinberg said. Proposal 2 asks voters to let the state borrow $1 billion to fight water pollution and beach closings. Communities could then get state loans to improve their sewer systems.

The billboards feature a drawing of a golf-club-toting Woods with the words "water hazard" in red. They show Woods spitting out murky, brown Michigan water and saying he doesn't feel "up to par." "It's nothing personal against Tiger," said artist Mark Heckman, who came up with the water hazard idea. "Jeez, who's bigger in golf?" The billboards were paid for by Peter Wege, a descendant of the founder of Steelcase Inc. and one of Michigan's wealthiest people. Wege often funds billboards to support environmental causes. He could not be reached for comment.

Jolie 'terrified' son will step on landmine

LONDON (AP) — Actress Angelina Jolie says she's terrified her adopted Cambodian son will step on a landmine in the Southeast Asian nation, where she is building a home.

Jolie plans to live part-time in Cambodia with 1-year-old Maddox and said she had the land around their home cleared of mines.

"I'm terrified that he could go for a walk and step on something, so I'm very aware of what the parents there must feel," she said during a visit to a training center for mine removers. "It's so unnecessary and so cruel."

Jolie, who recently filed to divorce from actor Billy Bob Thornton, adopted Maddox after working on a film in his home country.

"Cambodia, Afghanistan and Angola are among the most heavily mined countries in the world," she said. "When we were filming we were told 'You can go here, you can't go there, you have to stick to the footpaths and I didn't understand why.' They explained about the land mines and I just wanted to help."

TX Christian concert draws record crowd

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Bill Graham and contemporary Christian musicians drew a record crowd on the third night of the Metroplex Mission.

An estimated 82,000 people attended the event, which included a 30-minute message from Graham and musical performances by Jars of Clay, Franklins and dc Talk, mini-spokesman Larry Ross said.

The audience included about 12,000 who watched the two-hour event from a large television screen in the stadium parking lot. About 5,000 others were seated on the stadium floor.

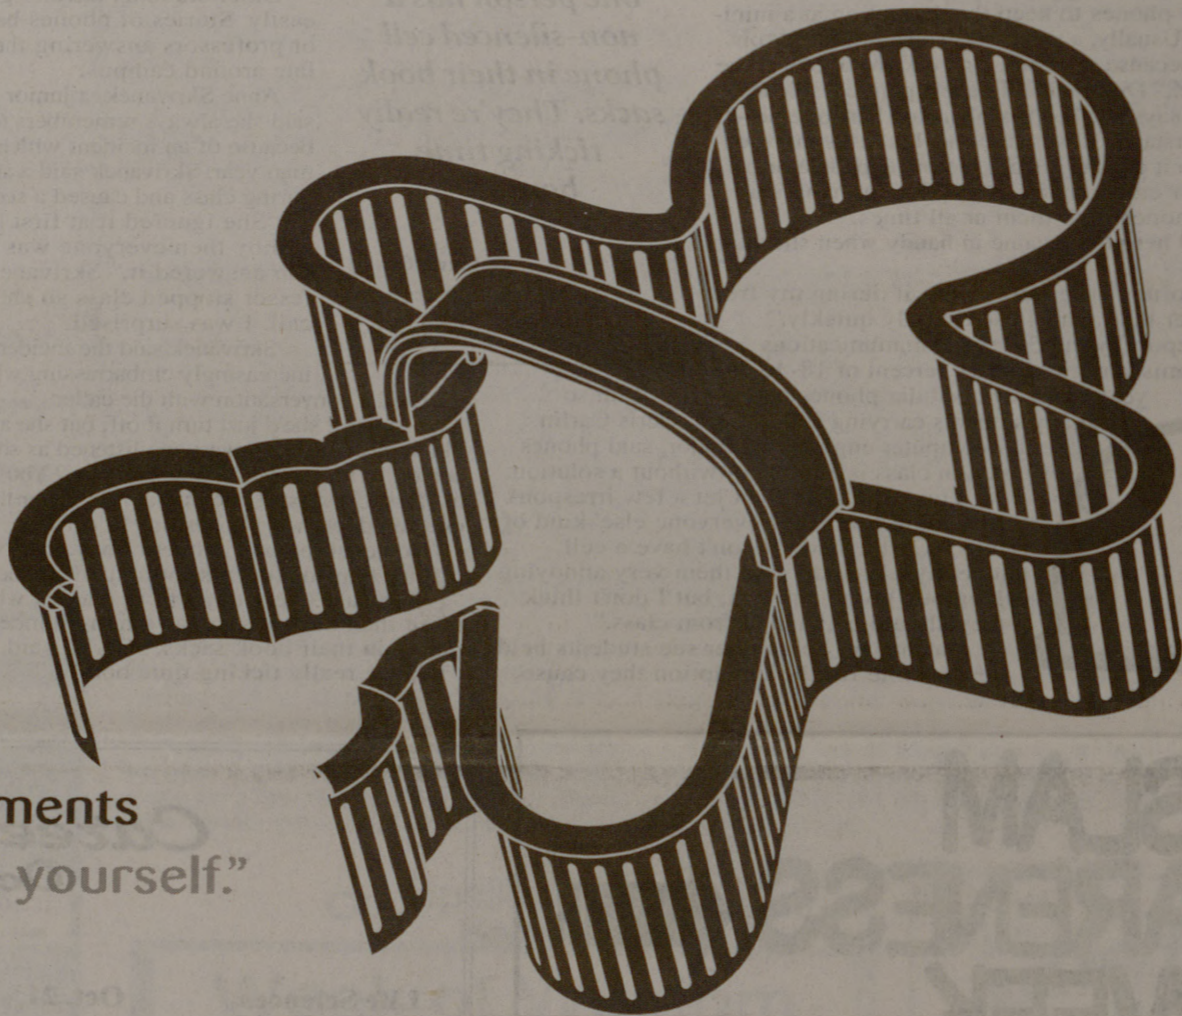

The crowd grew so large that stadium officials had to close the gates half an hour before the concert began.

Bruce Hardy, vice president and general manager at Texas Stadium, said the 82,000 attendance beats the record of religious singer Carmen, who drew about 71,000 at a concert in the mid 1990s.

"It was unbelievable — the best behaved young people I've ever seen," he said.

The Texas mission was only the second this year for Graham, who will be 84 next month and suffers from Parkinson's.
