SPORTS IN BRIEF

Cross country teams preparing for NCAA Regional in Waco

The Texas A&M cross country teams could be lining up for the final time in the 2002 season Saturday as they get set to compete in the NCAA South Central Regional Meet. The meet which is being hosted by Baylor, represents the opportunity for both squads to return to the NCAA Nationals, as neither team managed to rack up enough at-large points during the season to qualify without a second place regional finish.

The men are coming into the regional meet ranked No. 4 behind Arkansas, SMU and Texas. After starting the season with a national ranking, the women's team has faced several setbacks. The women have battled back through and managed to get a fourth place finish at the Big 12 meet. They are ranked No. 3 in the South Central Region.
