WEB WATCH

raketik.com/workshop2/workshop

It's obscure. It's disturbing. It's hard to stop watching. Dance Fundamentals would be better described as "strange man dancing." It's one Web site where visitors can learn all the steps to a two-step, hip-hop, minimal techno, dub and brasilectro. The lessons, offered in English and German, have been developed and are coached by a professional instructor named "RenZ." Featured in the form of short videos that give each dance's history, the lessons lend advice on how to perform various dances. After the lesson, click the link for dance and watch RenZ dance his heart out in that style.

The video requires a Quicktime plug-in and is best viewed using a high speed Internet connection. But having a slow connection should not stop anyone from visiting the site. The lessons are interesting, and the dance videos are hysterical. If one is in a bad humor, only a quick look at the splash page is sure to lighten the mood. However, taking the time to watch the videos guarantees a laugh that one will want to share with friends and family alike.

Listen up, freshmen. Pickaprof.com, a site known and loved by grade-conscious upperclassmen, could be your link to snagging the best professors on campus. Users simply sign on, type a professor's last name and are able to create a sample class schedule, view grade distributions and read student reviews.

Featured in a comprehensive bar graph, the grade distribution reveals how stingy or generous professors are when it comes to passing out grades. Grade distributions are separated into "undergraduate," "honors" and "graduate" level, which can give students a more specific view of what grade they can hope to receive in the class.

In addition, users can read featured reviews, written by class veterans who lend a synopsis of a professor's syllabus, expectations and attitude. While some reviews come from overzealous lovers or haters of the class, most offer an honest opinion of what others should expect from a professor.

The only disadvantage to the site is its $5 registration charge, which students must pay to renew each semester. However, the charge is credited back to the user if he reserves books with one of pickaprof.com's featured bookstores.

Overall, the site volunteers invaluable insight to anyone planning a pain-free class load.

Enter fanlistings.net, a site where the main purpose is to join people with similar passions. From Brad Pitt to vinyl records, thousands of categories come together under fanlistings.net. The site ensures that only one listing exists for an item and that the listing is publicized for all fans of the item to join.

Fanlistings work quickly and easily. Once someone decides to join a fanlisting, all they have to do is visit the site created for that listing and sign up. However, since it is fast, easy and fun to do, fanlistings can quickly get out of hand. With so many listings to choose from, there is nothing to stop someone from joining dozens of listings. Before long, one's name, location, e-mail address, and any other information they wish to share is there for thousands to find. Fanlistings.net may be the "new big thing" on the Internet; however, the universal appeal of its numerous listings can easily overwhelm the average visitor.

Rehn publicizes correspondence with ex-'Bachelor' Michel

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Trista Rehn says she and "The Bachelor" Alex Michel corresponded for months after he rejected her on the ABC reality show last spring.

Rehn, now the star of ABC's "The Bachelorette," tells the Jan. 18 issue of TV guide that Michel called her and she wrote to him even though Michel had picked Amanda Marsh as the winner on "The Bachelor."

Rehn says Michel told her "that he thought he had made a big mistake. He'll probably deny that he said it, but that's the reason I continued to correspond," Michel declined comment to TV Guide.

Rehn says she ultimately decided against a relationship with Michel because he was still publicly linked to Marsh, her family didn't like him, and ABC offered her "The Bachelorette."

Last week's debut of "The Bachelorette," which pairs Rehn with 25 men to find her one true love, drew 17.4 million viewers to win its time period.

"I thought it would be great for a woman to make the decisions," she says.

Rome studio recreates New York City for Scorsese's 'Gangs'

ROME (AP) — An unabashed admiration of Italy prompted Martin Scorsese to use a Rome studio to recreate New York City of the 1860s for his immigrant epic "Gangs of New York."

"I cannot express in words the impact and the appreciation I have for Italian cinema and Italian culture, and so it only seemed natural to ... work here in Rome," he told reporters Saturday.

Scorsese and "Gangs" star Leonardo DiCaprio returned to Italy to attend a gala showing of their movie, which also stars Daniel Day-Lewis and Cameron Diaz.

The set at Cinecittà studio helped create an atmosphere of old New York despite being a continent away from the modern city, DiCaprio said.

"We were very much cocooned in the environment of Cinecittà and these four square blocks that were recreated for us," he said. "I can't tell you how tremendously it helped us as characters feeling a part of that time — at times it felt like we were literally transported back into a different era."
