ruling." INS prosecutor Heidi Graham agreed with the judge's decision, saying: "Had we known about what he calls his misguided thinking, we would never have issued him a visa." Aletwei was arrested Jan. 31 and charged with violating provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act. Violators are subject to deportation. Officials with the FBI and the INS in Dallas would not comment on the case or say what led them to Aletwei. "He's a peculiar case, I have to admit. I haven't heard of one like that, and I've been in the business for 35 years," former FBI Associate Deputy Director

Oliver "Buck" Revell told The Dallas Morning News in its Saturday editions.

During his hearing, in which Aletwei waived his right to an attorney and represented himself in court, the issue of mental competency was not raised.

Many of Aletwei's comments heard by the judge were made earlier during questioning with the FBI.

At one point during FBI questioning, Aletwei said he was involved in terrorism and that his desire to become a martyr was sown in his home country.

"In my mind, I was doing a noble thing," he told the judge.

Aletwei said he disclosed his thoughts to the FBI as a show of good faith and a way to help them deal with terrorism.

"I want people to understand just how we think because if they understand how we think, they can prevent accidents like 9-11. I don't believe war or violence can solve anything," he said.

One of Aletwei's teachers at UTA said he was shocked to hear about his student's given testimony.

Arthur Reyes, an assistant professor of computer science at UTA, said Aletwei had complained in recent months of government harassment and the revocation of his student visa by the U.S. Embassy in Jordan, but rarely spoke of politics and seemed well-balanced.

"There's nothing in his character that would indicate any truth to that at all," Reyes said. "That doesn't sound like the Tahir that we know."

NEWS IN BRIEF Blinn student finds marrow donor

A 21-year-old Blinn graduate, diagnosed with Non-Hodgkins lymphoma, a cancer of the lymph nodes, has found a bone marrow match with the help of The Scott and White Marrow Donor Programs and the Blinn College Vocational Nursing Students Association.

Kristen Reed, from Caldwell, was diagnosed with Non-Hodgkins lymphoma in the fall of 2001 and has been undergoing chemotherapy for the past year.

A bone marrow drive was held on the Blinn campus Thursday, in which 176 people tured out, said Gena Parsons, Blinn public information officer.

Reed travels to M.D. Anderson Cancer Center in Houston today to begin preparations for stem cell treatment.

Sex responsibility week begins at A&M

Student Health Services will sponsor Sexual Responsibility Week, Feb. 10-13, to provide students with valuable information about relationships and sexual health.

The week-long event will feature panels on practicing abstinence, the difference between male and female communication styles and free, anonymous HIV testing.

"Whether you're abstaining from sex or are sexually active, it's really important to know how to take care of yourself," said Margaret Griffith, M.S., Health Education Coordinator and HIV sexual health specialist for A.P. Beutel Health Center.

Abstinence is a choice anyone can make, even if you have previously been sexually active, Griffith said.

Clarification

In the article entitled "Student Senate passes fee increase" Friday, Feb. 7, the Student Senate approved a measure at its meeting Wednesday, Feb. 5 that will allow Texas A&M students to vote on the sports fee increase Feb. 26 and 27.
