NEWS IN BRIEF

Doctors suggest new tests upon finding rare brain disease

BOSTON (AP) — A human brain-wasting illness — a close relative of one resembling mad cow disease — also infects the nasal passages, researchers have discovered, raising the prospect of a diagnostic test.

Right now, there is no cure or way to diagnose the fatal disease, known as sporadic Creutzfeldt-Jakob. A diagnostic test could help select patients for experimental treatments, said the Italian researchers who published their findings Thursday in The New England Journal of Medicine.

The sporadic disease, without a clear cause, is the most common form in a family of Creutzfeldt-Jakob diseases striking about one in a million people.
