called a misinformation campaign by The Battalion, and the Graduate Student Council, which passed a resolution urging a no-vote on the fee increase. "Fee opponents) were not interested in an honest discussion of the issue, but in misrepresenting what we were trying to do," Corrington said. Among the projects that would have been funded by increasing the fee from $78 per semester to $88 was a $4 million doubling of the size of the weight and fitness room in the Rec Center, a $5 million expansion of Penberthy Intramural Sports Center, and pay raises for the department's student workers. Unlike past fee proposals, in which the department spent as much as $2,000 for campaigning, this year only $500 was set aside to promote the fee, although the department also devoted some of its regular advertisement buys in The Battalion to promoting the fee, Corrington said. Corrington said he will bring the fee increase to a referendum next year. "We need to raise the fee or seriously cut back on services," Corrington said. The department is already dipping into its $5 million reserve fund to cover budget shortfalls, Corrington said. Cutbacks are likely next year, he said, although no budget decisions have been made. Erin Eckhart, election commissioner for the Student Government Association, said the only other defeat of a fee increase in the past 10 years was in 1996, when students rejected a hike in the University Center fee.

so we can be confident in the results we announce," Eckhart said.

Yell leaders Tim Bailey and Jonathan Lusk, along with John Magruder, are the Corps of Cadets nominees for senior yell. Also running are Eric Brewer, Paul Harding, Matthew Kainer, and Charlie Lima.

Candidates for junior yell are Taylor Baumgartner, Ryan Bishop, James Denham, Mar Ebner, John Fischer, Hunter Gossett, Matthew Henderson, Cody Kerr, Keith Lane, Robert Mohr, Curt Steinhorst, Paul Terrell, Will Tolliver, and Mike Winn. Terrell and Bishop are the Corps nominees.

Student body president candidates must comply with a $1,000 campaign spending cap. Yell leader candidates have a $700 spending limit and Student Senate candidates have a $100 spending limit.

Germany with veto power — contend that inspections should be strengthened. France, Russia and China called Monday for Iraq to comply fully with the demands of U.N. weapons inspectors to avoid war.

The United States still doesn't have the nine "yes" votes needed to adopt the resolution, according to supporters and opponents of the measure. And even if it gets the nine votes, France and Russia have not ruled out using their vetoes. China is considered unlikely to veto the measure though it could abstain.

But diplomats said the United States is refusing to compromise. President Bush believes that previous U.N. resolutions already give the United States authority to attack Iraq. If the council rejects the U.S.-backed draft, Bush has said he is prepared to fight with a coalition of willing nations.
