Hijacker

Falcons from Homestead Air Force Reserve Base escorted the plane to Key West, said Maj. Ed Thomas of the North American Aerospace Defense Command.

A statement from Cuban authorities blamed the hijacking on what Havana says is the lax treatment of six men charged in the March 19 hijacking.

Jimenez, the U.S. attorney, was adamant that all the alleged hijackers would be fully prosecuted.

"We are not lenient on terrorists and those who commit crimes of violence," Jimenez said. "If anyone, including the Cuban government, thinks we're going to be lenient on this defendant because he is Cuban, they are wrong."

The suspects in the March 19 hijacking pleaded innocent Tuesday to federal air piracy and air piracy conspiracy charges, which carry maximum prison sentences of 20 years to life. They were granted bond, but prosecutors appealed that decision and they remain in jail.

Six crew members and 25 passengers — all Cubans except for one Italian — were on the earlier flight when knife-wielding hijackers took it over. Sixteen of those aboard chose to return to Cuba, the Italian was released in the United States and the rest opted to stay in the United States.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Coke, Walthall and Williams elected 2003 class agents

The team of Clay Walthall, Kelly Coke and Cliff Williams was elected 2003 class agents during the March 27-28 student body elections. They garnered 60 percent of the vote against two other teams. Also on the ballot were the class gifts for Classes of 2003 and 2004. The results will be announced by class council leaders April 5 at the Dance. Voting in the elections will begin today at 9 a.m. and end at 5 p.m. Thursday. Students can view their ballots at vote.tamu.edu.

Correction

In the March 28 page article "Board of Regents approve tuition increase," University President Robert M. Garza said the new Independent Study Abroad program is assessed only for students participating in approved study abroad program independent of Texas A&M.
